BERGDOLL TO RETURN TO U. S. AT LEGION'S BID

Will Go to Prison, Hapgood Says.

New York, March 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, convicted during the war as a draft evader, has agreed to return to America to serve his sentence in a federal prison, it was announced today by Norman Hapgood, editor of Hart's International magazine.

Bergdoll will return at the invitation of the American Legion, which through John Quinn, national commander, issued a statement tonight declaring the legion had been accused of attempting to kidnap Bergdoll, and it was time to "show the world" that the organization stood for law and order.

To Carb Anti-German Feud.

The legion's offer was made by Leighton H. Blood, a member of the organization, who said he went to Germany to carry out a plan mapped out by Garfield W. Powell, national director of the legion's Americanism commission, and Lemuel Bolles, national assistant.

"My mission was to invite Bergdoll to come back to America with me of my own free will," Blood said.

"As long as Bergdoll was in Germany the anti-German feelings in the Legion would be strengthened and would carry over in American politics. Therefore the Legion could be worked on by which Bergdoll could be brought back to America if it would everybody."

Terror Offered Bergdoll.

Blood said he was violating no conditions in giving a summary of the terms made to Bergdoll.

"Here it is," said Blood. "Bergdoll must come back. He must serve his sentence. The American Legion is not so much interested in Bergdoll as in the men who helped him escape from America. Let's bring Bergdoll back and have him make a clean break and tell who the enemies in our own camp are. Then let him do his bit in prison. After that give him his money and let him go his way."

Mr. Hapgood said Bergdoll had sold his automobiles and other properties in Germany and even selected the ship on which he wished to return to America.

Statement by the Legion.

The American Legion statement read as follows:

"The American Legion has been tested at different times of taking into its own hands, especially in regard to Bergdoll. We have been accused of attempting to kidnap him, of breaking treaties with foreign powers through these alleged treasonous Legion attempts to bring him back to this country."

"We deemed it was time to show the world that the American Legion not only follows the precepts of its constitution in that we stand for 'law and order' but that we go about things in a orderly, lawful way. We are indicating Bergdoll to come back peaceably because we believe it is our patriotic duty to uphold and defend the constitution of the United States, and also to prevent further attempts which may be attributed to the American Legion."

How Laws Must Be Obeyed.

"Let this be a warning to all that the regulations that their country and laws must be obeyed; that justice prevails."

The legion's national Americanism commission's greatest work is to teach loyalty to country in time of peace as well as in time of war. Our organization owes its thanks and appreciation to Garfield W. Powell, director of the Americanism commission; for the way in which he planned and handled this matter, and to Leighton H. Blood, a member, for presenting the offer of the Legion and the state department to Bergdoll.

"There are many forces at work in America, who on every hand try to discredit the work that the Legion is endeavoring to do. Gross misrepresentation comes from these sources. We hope people to know the truth."

Escaped from Army Guards.

Bergdoll, who earned the appellation of "America's most notorious draft evader," fled to Germany after a sensational escape from two army camps on May 21, 1920. He was born from his mother's womb in Philadelphia, where he had stopped on the way to the hills of Maryland, where he was supposed to have hid out of gold—$125,000, which he had deposited in a bank for safety and interest.

He escaped the army station at Governmental and was page 14, column 1.

5 ARRESTED IN DRIVE TO CLEAR $8,000,000 LOOT

Fake Holdups to Get Insurance.

Suddenly springing an intricate plot last night, operatives of the William J. Burns agency, the state's attorney's office, and the detective bureau closed in on suspects and evidence in an alleged diamond robbery trust which over a period of years has handled more than $5,000,000 in jewels, stolen from dealers and jobbers in precious stones. It is alleged that most of the robbers have been shamed to divulge insurance companies.

Those first taken into custody were Morris Levinson, a diamond merchant at 32 North State street; James Probasco, formerly a west side cabaret owner; Miss Julia Smith, 55 West Chicago avenue, and Lawson Jaffe, a diamond salesman employed by Levinson.

On information gained from Probasco and Miss Smith, detectives set out at an early hour this morning to open a cache in a north side house which was said to contain $50,000 in stolen diamonds.

Arrested in Hotel.

The trap laid for the diamond robbers began to close last night at 9 o'clock, when operatives took into custody Louis J. Victor, a salesman, living in the Cooper-Carlton hotel. Victor was questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Mervyn. It was said he was a salesman for Levinson and that he often sold costly diamonds at cheap. He said he supposed there was something wrong with the diamonds, but didn't know exactly what.

Later in the evening Levinson, who has been followed day and night by detectives, was taken in. He denied all complicity in any robberies. Levinson has on several occasions incidental to diamond robberies been questioned in the detective bureau.

Refuses to Reveal Cache.

Acting on information, detectives went to a house in Chicago avenue and took Probasco. He promised to tell where the $50,000 in stolen stones could be found. Later he refused to aid in the search. Then Miss Smith, who was taken with Probasco, declared she knew all about the source of the $50,000 loot and promised to produce them.

Miss Smith told the investigators that the $50,000 in diamonds belonged to Levinson; that Jaffe, acting for Levinson, went to Indianapolis last Saturday ostensibly to sell them. Probasco and a girl known as Florence followed Jaffe. The bag containing the diamonds was stolen from a restaurant when Jaffe placed it on the floor by his chair.

Act Under Crowd.

The police trap was set through the joint efforts of Lloyd's insurance agency of London, operating through the Burns agency, the insurance firm of Toplis & Harding of Chicago, Chief Michael Hughes of the Chicago office of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe.

Definite information that a robbers' clique, organized for years, led by a State street diamond merchant and operating to rob diamond salesmen by sham holdups and insurance companies by false representations, led Lloyd's to declare war. Orders were given to stop all diamond sales.

While the objective is to capture the whole band for all the robberies committed, the specific crime which led to the present investigation was the robbery of Lewis Raitt, a diamond salesman, of $225,000 worth of diamonds on Jan. 31 last. Raitt was a newsmen and a bond salesman for Lee, Higgins & Co., and Mrs. Delina Mallick, a comedy divorcee. Recently the couple became estranged and she was living at the Belmont avenue address. Last night Slocum was watching the house from across the street. An automobile appeared containing Mrs. Slocum and David Meyers, who gave his address as 4938 Vincennes avenue. Slocum demanded that his wife get out of the car and Meyers seized the jack handle. Slocum wrested the handle from his assailant and gave him a terrible beating.

Those fellows who shot at me and those fellows who bombed my place were working for the Master Cleaners and Dyers' association. I've been threatened time and again but I've failed to heed their threats. If it wasn't for Hirchie Miller I'd be charging $2.50 to clean and press a suit instead of $1.50.

BURNS' AGENT LINKS DAUGHERTY DIRECTLY WITH FIGHT FILM GRAFT PLOT

Lead's newspaper. The examination proceeded.

SENATOR WHEELER—Now what, if anything, did Mumu say with reference to his relationship with the attorney general?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—He mentioned that he was very friendly with Mr. Burns, and was very friendly with Mr. Daugherty. He volunteered it; it seemed to me that he wanted to impress me with the fact.

See our Heads Report of Affairs.

Mr. Holdridge was allowed to read from a statement he prepared concerning the fight film case early in 1922.

MR. HOLDRIDGE—(reading from statement)—During our visit, Mr. Mumu showed me an autographed photograph of William J. Burns—taken, according to Mumu, about fifteen years ago. The photograph was torn and pieced together with adhesive plaster or tape. Mr. Mumu explained to me in some detail that he had known Mr. Burns for many years; that they were very good friends. He also referred to the attorney general, Mr. Daugherty, as an old friend, and from a small desk produced two letters signed "H. M. Daugherty." I noted that the signatures appeared to be identical.

SENATOR WHEELER—Did you know the signature?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—It was the same signature that appears on my credential card. There is a signature there on the bottom of that paper, accepting my resignation Nov. 1.

"My Dear Mumu" Letters.

SENATOR JONES (Washington)—Were those letters addressed to Jap Mumu?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—They were addressed to "My dear Mumu."

SENATOR WHEELER—Did you see what was in the letters or not?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—I just got the gist of the letters. In both instances they appeared to be replying to letters from Mumu asking for help for some one, in the way of promotions or transfer. And I think in both cases they were the post office department.

"Some time after midnight," the witness read on from his statement, "Spellecy came to my office.

Judge Anderson—In March 17—Mr. Mumu, United States District attorney for Indiana, admitted today that an attempt had been made to gain his indulgence toward the exhibition of motion pictures of the Dempsey-Carpenter fight.

Mr. Elliott said a man, claiming to own the rights to the films, had visited his office and endeavored to arrange that a "dummy" should be fined, "not sentenced to jail for the planned violation of the federal law."

MR. HOLDRIDGE—The man who spoke to him was Agent T. G. Spellecy.

SENATOR WHEELER—That would be in Indiana, would it not?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—Yes. I met him at a Col. Martin in his apartment later on.

Chicago Great Peeves Film.

SENATOR JONES—But as you read that you got the impression that that he was a dummy.

MR. HOLDRIDGE—He said it was a dummy. (Continuing reading from statement) "The transportation plan was carried out and was operating with great success and very large profits when Agent Navarro [of the New York office] of the bureau of investigation called on Fred Quincy and began to ask many embarrassing questions. Quincy was given the New York "goat" who was arrested and brought to Albany to bring the fight film from New York, fine $500, to Federal Judge Shippard, according to department of justice records. Quincy immediately became alarmed and reported to Mumu that he was in this situation.

MR. HOLDRIDGE—He thought it was either Indiana or Indiana, and he said he thought the judge was Judge Anderson.

SENATOR WHEELER—Judge Anderson?

SENATOR JONES—Yes.

SENATOR WHEELER—That would be in Indiana, would it not?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—I could not come to positive conclusion about that. I did meet a Col. Martin in his apartment later on.

Chicago Great Peeves Film.

SENATOR JONES—But as you read that you got the impression that that he was a dummy.

MR. HOLDRIDGE—He said it was a dummy. (Continuing reading from statement) "The name of Tex Richard and C. Q. Quincy also appeared as signers of the contract. Mr. Mumu also permitted a brief look at a statement which he had written to the court, in which he said he would impose a prison sentence."

MR. HOLDRIDGE—The statement was that the fight film was to be exhibited in the state of Indiana.

SENATOR WHEELER—Was that the first time he told me that the man was Navarro?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—Yes. I told him that the man's name was Navarro; that Navarro was on the case of his (Mumu's) business partner, Fred Quincy, two or three times; that Navarro was asking a lot of questions about their business that made them feel uncomfortable.

SENATOR WHEELER—Yes; some said it was a shame that people could not see them all over the country.

Mr. Urion Is Introduced

SENATOR WHEELER—In other words, did he tell you that it was his deal he was being interrupted by Navarro?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—Yes. (Continuing reading from statement)—After the talk with Spellecy over breakfast at the Americas (Nov. 1921) and on learning from the agent that he had been unable to get in touch with Mr. McLean, he decided to go to Washington and see what could be done to stop the investigation by the department of justice. On arriving in Washington, Mumu immediately called on his old friend, Edward R. Urion, and in the conversation informed Mr. McLean that he (Mumu) was "headed right for Atlanta penitentiary." He told McLean just how matters stood, and remarked, according to other statements of the facts, that he was a personal friend of the attorney general. Old acquaintance of President Harding; calls him "Warren"; calls me "Jap"; on my way to Atlanta as a conspirator.

SENATOR WHEELER—He told you that he told McLean that he was headed right for the federal Atlanta penitentiary?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—Yes, sir. (Continuing reading from statement)—After listening to Mr. Urion's story, McLean got in touch with Mr. Daugherty.

SENATOR WHEELER—What did he refer to?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—Urion.

SENATOR WHEELER—And is he your memorandum?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—Yes, I have a memorandum.

SENATOR WHEELER—Why, they practically accused the attorney general of being the head of a conspiracy, and Mr. Burns of aiding and abetting it, and all that sort of thing, so I didn't report to either the attorney general or Mr. Burns.

SENATOR JONES—Why did you not report that?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—I wanted to see just what there was of it. I wanted to ascertain, as far as the credibility of Mr. Jap Mumu, if I could make a full investigation before I tried to report to William J. Burns that he was accused of standing in with the conspirators.

Jay Tunbridge Testifies.

Holdridge said he and Spellecy took advantage of an opportunity to pry some further information out of Mumu concerning the fight picture deal. A trap was set for Mumu and he fell into it, revealing the inside story of the plot. The witness then proceeded to give Mumu's account.

MR. HOLDRIDGE—(continuing reading from statement)—On or about July 4, 1921, acting on arrangements previously made, Mr. Mumu left New York for Washington with the just developed plan of the Dempsey-Carpenter fight.

SENATOR WHEELER—Now, with whom had he made arrangements?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—He passed over that very casually. He said, "I have things all fixed."

SENATOR JONES—And you did not find out from him how things had been fixed?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—I did not want to interrupt him. He was talking quite fast, and I let him go ahead.

MR. HOLDRIDGE—(continuing reading from statement)—On arriving at Washington he went out to "Friendship," the McLean house, where he relaxed himself and later went to the McLeans' hotel room.

SENATOR WHEELER—What do you mean by "relaxed himself"?

MR. HOLDRIDGE—He said he was up a bottle of Scotch and felt a good deal better after a while. (Continuing reading): The McLeans and members of the cabinet were there, their son, Mr. McLean, and Mrs. Harry New, who are the sons and daughters, and many senators and congressmen. Following the exhibition of the pictures, Mr. Mumu had a talk with Attorney General Daugherty about the film, and the President. Mr. McLean and Mr. Urion, and Captain (the President's personal) followed the discussion between general. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that the law which prevented people all over the country from seeing such pictures was originally passed to prevent the white race against the humiliating spectacle of a white man beaten by a Negro.

SENATOR WHEELER—That seemed to be

EITTELSON PUT 'O. K. ON FIGHT FILMS AFTER A $500 FINE ON RICKARD

The showing of the Dempsey-Carpenter films would have been doomed in Chicago but for a ruling by Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, which interpreted the law in favor of "Tex" Rickard and Fred Quimby, joint owners of the fight films.

Rickard brought the films here and was to attempt the same method whereby he had been able to show them in other states. He would display the films, be arrested, and fined $1,000, and then put the films on display again. A federal ruling which forbids the second trial on the same charge would save his second arrest.

But here it was different. He was arrested, tried, and fined $500. He was warned not to show the films again. He engaged Attorneys Schuyler and Weinfeld, former law partners of Mr. Ettelson, to defend him.

At that time he was different. He was a good friend. He also referred to the attorney general, Mr. Daugherty, as an old friend, and from a small desk produced two letters signed "H. M. Daugherty." I noted that the signatures appeared to be identical.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Washington Court House, O., March 17.—(Special.)—The home of Attorney General Harry Daugherty, Roxie Stinson, and the late Jess W. Smith, were in Cleveland, and had a conference with the above named witnesses; that on Feb. 18, 1924, Roxie Stinson and A. L. Fink, registered at the Hollenden hotel in Cleveland, O., under the name of A. L. French and wife, that they occupied Room 456 in said hotel; that the next morning he paid their bill and departed from the Hollenden hotel, Roxie Stinson going to the Statler in Cleveland hotel in a moon somewhere between "inarticulate rage" and the comic spirit. Here, where the mysterious suicide of Jess Smith has been a matter of speculation and gossip for months, it is felt that his ex-wife still holds the key to the secret and that she is likely to tell it if the attack upon her character comes from the attorney general's camp.

She is said to have told her few intimates here that she had documents which she would not reveal until the last extremity. Jess Smith was like unto a mad dog, and that he told her everything he knew, and perhaps a little more, is not doubted.

Many Long Distance Talks. He telephoned her every day while he was in Washington and kept her in close touch with every "deal" that was going on. Preoccupied and in trouble during his last visits here, he was constantly in her company, riding with her in her little coupe, watching the progress of the house she was building on the edge of town, sometimes sitting alone with him head in his hands. She was to him the flame of life.

Smith, it is said today in a reliable quarter, had another confidant here, one of his boyhood friends. He is said to have told this man many of the things to which Miss Stinson has testified.

His identity is being protected. One other person who might be able to help the committee investigation is Miss Gertrude Oldham, a little stenographer who formerly lived with Miss Stinson. She is said to be in Kentucky. Smith was about as much a mystery here during the last four years as he was in Washington. He always had lots of money and held conferences here and in the Daugherty shack on Deer creek with many important individuals.

Why men should journey here from Chicago to seek the favor of a former country storekeeper is a matter that started gossip here long ago.

Called Mrs. Harding "the Duchess."

Smith was constantly reported in the presence of the Hardings, and there are many pictures about town concerning him, company with the President and "the Duchess," as he called Mrs. Harding. Mrs. Harding was picking out her gown, Smith went to New York in her party to aid her in interviewing merchants.

It is even said that he was the originator of the famous "Harding blue" hat and gown color. All this time his relations with Miss Stinson were a "matter of common knowledge, and she received him from time to time constantly.

The Daughertys, it became known, did not like this. The attorney general particularly objected, it is said, but was unable to do anything, as Smith was helpless. He endured much for her, and she accepted a measure of social ostracism for him.

Mal Daugherty, the attorney general's brother, still remains on the lid here. It is known on his account that people are slow to accept the evidence against the attorney general, for he is a real leader here and respected.

He has taken on, however, all his brother's fights. He has received offers of aid from citizens here and in other towns who do not think that the attorney general is being given a fair chance in the committee hearings.

Several months ago a squad of federal secret service agents arrived in Columbus. They were reported to be looking into the affairs of several of the attorney general's enemies. Incidentally, it was learned at the time they investigated Jess W. Smith, and it was reported they found a large amount of cash, more than $100,000, in a safety deposit box under his name.

Registers Show Evidence.

Cleveland, O., March 17.—Details of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty's statement made today in Washington were corroborated tonight in respect by evidence obtained here.

Complete record of the Hollenden shows that "A. L. French and wife, Pittsburgh, Pa." registered there on Feb. 18. It was revealed by J. E. Frawley, associate manager of the hotel, that the original registered containing the signature had been turned over to John V. Ryan, agent of the department of justice here, and is now in his possession.

United States Attorney A. E. Bernstein declared that photostatic copies of the register were made by department of justice men and that further investigation is being made.

The register of Hotel Stalter shows that a woman registering as Roxie Stinson took a room there Feb. 19 and remained through Feb. 21.

See $475,000,000 Total by End of March.

Washington, D. C., March 17.—The American people in filing their income tax returns this month poured $377,840 into the federal treasury and nearly $100,000,000 additional is expected before the end of the month.

Reports were compiled at the treasury today from all the sixty-five revenue districts, showing that the revenue collectors had actually received and deposited $26,607,516 and had received, but not yet deposited to the treasury, $121,341,234.

The total of $377,840,840, augmented by payments in the mails and by others as yet to be sent in, is expected to amount to approximately $475,000,000, as compared with total payments of $465,772,016 received last year up to the end of March.

35 Millions from Illinois.

The first Illinois district, including Chicago, had reported collections of $32,309,776, it was announced today at the treasury. The eighth Illinois district had received $1,433,561.

Actual and estimated collections of other middle western states were Indiana, $5,177,695; Iowa, $2,225,254; first Michigan, $1,860,755; fourth Michigan, $1,225,000; Wisconsin, $625,111.

New York district collections reported by the treasury were as follows: first New York, $5,447,251; second, $57,130; third, $20,491,925; fourth, $58,471; twenty-first, $3,254,238; twenty-eighth, $7,538,792.

Manhattan Receipts Flood In.

New York, March 17.—(Special)—Income tax receipts for the second and third revenue districts, comprising all of Manhattan, totaled $60,517,524.65 at the closing hour Saturday night, it was announced at the customs house today.

More than 70,000 letters were received in yesterday's mail, and at least 40,000 returns were made by mail this morning. More than 25 clerks were employed in the slitting of envelopes.

Many letters were received containing only remittances, without name or address or income blank accompanying them. Such letters, it was stated, would have to be traced back through the postoffice to ascertain from whom they came.

Everyone knows there would be a quick change of attorneys general if Mr. Coolidge were a candidate for reelection," said the senator.

Former Admiral Harry L. Rosseau was named at the suggestion of Atlee Pomerene, government counsel, and J. C. Anderson, president of the Pan-American Petroleum company, a defendant in the suit, was appointed at the suggestion of Frederick R. Kellogg, general counsel for the oil company.

Expert to View Lease.

Government counsel announced that an oil well was coming from Washington to go over the Elk Hills field and determine whether a permit would be granted to drill wells to offset drainage from the outside.

Former Senator Pomerene made his statement, alleging that there had been "certain frauds" in granting the leases and "irregular and illegal" procedure in awarding the contract for the drilling offset wells. He pointed out that the government claims no authority to grant the leases, the evidence against the attorney general, for cause of lack of authority to make them," and remarked that "there was no competitive bidding in the naval reserve," he said.

Mr. Kellogg rose to assure the court and the government that the defendants would not avail themselves of a technical defense involving voluminous answers and other tortuous methods.

Mr. Pomerene said that Robert and his associate counsel, Owen J. Roberts, would leave tomorrow for Washington.

DAUGHERTY PULL IN OHIO SEEN AS HIS HOLD ON JOB

Washington, D. C., March 17.—Attorney General Daugherty is being sued by his office by President Coolidge solely "because of Mr. Daugherty's supposed political influence" in the forthcoming campaign, Senator Cardinall, Ark., today charged.

HUGE PLOT OF FADED JEWEL THEFTS BARED

$8,000,000 Gems Seized by Participants.

The detention of Louis Victor last night was carried out under the direction of State's Attorney Crowe and Assistant State's Attorney Savage. The questioning of Victor as the first public move toward revealing the mysterious inner workings of the Chicago diamond robbers' trust. The orders by State's Attorney Crowe, William J. Burns, and Chief Hughes of the detective bureau have been emphatic: to break up the robbery trust, whereby thefts, fraud, and rape have stirred the jewel trade.

At a time of high color in the detective work employed to unravel the mystery, it has been known that women of unusual talent in their several capacities appear in the case of charmers. One of these is a beautiful Chicago girl whose role was that of shyster, coaxing lure to the diamond salesmen whose gems it was proposed to take.

Use a Telepathic Medium.

But the character chiefly dramatic was assigned to Miss Eugenie Dennis of Atlanta, Kansas. Miss Dennis has been recruited in New York as a telepathic medium veiled in the most ominous mystery. She went to New York from Kansas, a simple country girl vested with supernatural powers of a sort accurately timed at columns of publicity. Utterly failing her visit to New York was to enable scientists to test her abilities. Underlying this ostensible pose was the desire of Burns' operatives to obtain for her a certain measure of attention. She got the attention.

And when it had got pretty thoroughly established that she could peer into the very depths of the human soul she was starred in the rôle for which she was actually taken to New York: to add to the hunt for the diamond robbers a kind of psychopathology in the hope that a wacky scheme might bring the result that routine sleuthing might miss.

Men to Be Questioned.

In addition to Radt, Victor, and Lewin, there will be a proposal to question the top men of rounding up the robbers' trust crew.

RAYMOND J. KLEIN, who a New York diamond salesman; he is said to have talked with Radt in St. Louis, and to have telephoned to certain ones in Chicago from St. Louis just after Radt started for Chicago.

Z. S. FRANKE, another diamond salesman, who left for St. Petersburg, Fla., immediately after the $200,000 Radt robbery. Franke is a well-known jeweler.

STANLEY STEUFENBERG, formerly in the taxicab business in Chicago. He is expected to help in the identification of the cab used in the robbery of Radt.

JAMES G. STEUFENBERG, a brother of Stanley, also a former taxicab man, and also wanted in connection with the use of a cab in the robbery of Radt.

There are numerous other names in the hands of Burns' operatives; also in the hands of the Pinkerton National Detective agency and operatives of the United States treasury department, who have been investigating the activities of smugglers in connection with the Chicago diamond robberies.

INQUIRY STARTS

It was the robbery of Lewis Radt that started the sweeping investigation. In all previous jewel robberies of this character the evidence of conspiracy led so far that no insurance companies had paid the bill, and the robbery was without comment. But on this occasion the interest of Lloyd's of London was aroused. The record of diamond robberies in Chicago was growing at such an alarming rate that it was determined to spare no expense to find the reason. The Burns agency was engaged. Operatives also were engaged from the Pinkertons. Every person who might have even a remote connection or slight information concerning the robbers' trust was put under surveillance.

Because Lewis Radt was the victim of the $200,000 Chicago robbery he was one of the first to be spied upon. Then the Burns agency hit upon the idea of taking Miss Dennis, the telepathic marvel, from Kansas to New York. Miss Dennis had been making a great local reputation for her ability to read the minds of her friends and to find missing articles. Her reputation grew and advanced to New York.

One of Her Accomplishments.

One of her first accomplishments in New York was to inform the proprietor of her hotel that a stolen watch would be found "up" in some room pushed against the wall and wrapped in something white." It was. And from

SOME OF LARGER GEM THEFTS HERE IN RECENT YEARS

Among the larger gem thefts staged in Chicago in the last few years were the following:

January, 1918—Heller-Rose Jewelry Company, $250,000.

Nov. 7, 1920—Arthur Reich, 5 Main Street, New York; $200,000.

Dec. 22, 1920—Philip Morenstein, New York; $100,000.

April 22, 1921—Julius J. Reingold and Leroy Prentiss in Keener building of $250,000 in gems.

July 18, 1921—Harry Preston and John Zuckerman; $65,000.

Nov. 2, 1921—A. H. Nathan, 1114 Belmont Avenue, and M. M. Schwartz, 5121 Kenmore Avenue; $100,000.

Oct. 17, 1922—Max Moyer, 562 West 19th street, New York; $200,000.

Dec. 12, 1922—James G. Hammontree, 707 Chicago Savings Bank building; $100,000.

Feb. 24, 1923—Henry F. Hart, 87 Nassau Street, New York; $101,500.

Jan. 31, 1924—Lewis Radt; $250,000.

Details of his life: where he was born, the names of his parents, where he had lived, the occupations he had followed. She led up again to the unfortunate robbery in Chicago. This time she gave names of those who were concerned in it. She gave the name of a diamond merchant. Then she dropped the robbery of Radt and began on "Beautiful Young Women."

"The leader of these men in Chicago changes for these robberies," she said. "He is known as a young woman who dresses in beautiful gowns and attends socials in the smart hotels. She has a way of meeting salesmen for diamond houses and she invites them to visit her. She proposes to them that they take part in a sham robbery, losing their diamonds, only to collect the insurance and later get their diamonds back. And they do get them back, with the exception of 10 per cent of the insurance money and 10 per cent of the diamonds. This percentage goes to the man who arranges the robbery."

Radt held fast to his denials, concluding with the declaration that he would bring action to collect damages for the indignities he had suffered. All this took place in the middle of the day. Late that afternoon Radt was suffering from a nervous breakdown. He was removed to a sanitarium in New York, where he now remains under the care of Dr. George W. Smith.

There have been rumors that Miss Dennis was supplied with all the information before the elaborate seance was launched. This is stoutly denied.

It is declared that Miss Dennis had not the slightest knowledge of why Radt was brought before her and that she spoke only the things that telepathy put in her mind under the influence of Radt's presence.

Silently at Work Here.

However that may be, the telepathic seance was staged and Radt was sent to a sanitarium as the result of it. And following that seance twenty-five detectives have been silently at work in Chicago for weeks rounding up the evidence against the men who for years have been systematically robbing jewelry salesmen in Chicago.

The detectives have the name of the girl who is accused of luring New York salesmen into sham robberies.

She has been followed day and night.

She is described as a beautiful girl of an oriental cast who has an unerring instinct for jewelry salesmen with large quantities of diamonds.

The police say it is not so much instinct as information. She is said to dance with them and cajole them into framed up robberies. And sometimes, the police believe, when the salesmen refuse to be invaded into holdups, they are robbed anyhow.

restoring credit and financial firmness. Thus many of the robberies have been accomplished without the slightest trouble and no detection.

If it is not belief of the detectives that the present investigation that all jewel robberies are frauds. Many of them are carried out by criminals. But the police claim they have been able definitely to distinguish between the robberies conducted by criminals and those committed at by victims.

Try to Close Each Other.

We know of young women who dress in beautiful gowns and attend socials in the smart hotels. She has a way of meeting salesmen for diamond houses and she invites them to visit her. She proposes to them that they take part in a sham robbery, losing their diamonds, only to collect the insurance and later get their diamonds back.

THE MEDIUM'S STORY

"You want to Chicago," Miss Dennis began in a voice of dolorous monotony, "with a package of $250,000 in unset diamonds. On your way there you met a man who suggested to you that it would be an easy matter to let you be the victim of a robbery."

"Certainly not," said Radt, stoutly denying that he had ever contemplated such an idea.

"In Chicago," the medium continued, "you met a man who formerly was a tailor."

"Never knew a tailor in Chicago in my life," Radt is quoted as having said.

"And," pursued Miss Dennis, "there was a robbery, and you lost your diamonds."

"I did lose the diamonds, but it wasn't a frameup, and I'm not guilty of anything," said Radt.

Miss Dennis sat in deep thought for a moment. Then she began at another point. She told Radt intimate details of her life.

LA FOLLETTE HAS DECIDED TO RUN
ON THIRD TICKET*Sees Chance to Sweep
G. O. P. 'Into Oblivion.'*BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., March 17.—[Special]—Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.] has determined to be a candidate for a third ticket in the forthcoming presidential campaign.

The Wisconsin senator, leader of the radical bloc in congress, has admitted to intimate friends and political associates that he desires to make the fight of his life against the two old parties and that the time has arrived for the birth of a new party movement in this country which, he is convinced, will move toward ultimate triumph.

Independent Republican.

Senator La Follette does not wish at this time to make his fight on a brand new third party ticket, but to run as an independent Republican, the movement condoned by such a campaign would eventually in the formation of a third party.

The plan is, according to La Follette's friends, to have a convention of independent Republicans and all others interested after President Coolidge has been nominated at Cleveland. At this convention an independent ticket will be nominated. The convention will not restrict itself to disavow the two old parties, and there already is a well defined movement to name Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] as La Follette's running mate.

Other reports say second place may be offered to Associate Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court, or Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy under Wilson.

Willing to See Democrats Win.

The Wisconsin senator is convinced that this is his last chance to smash the old Republican organization, and he proposes to do his utmost, even if it should result in another four years of Democratic administration of the government. He has no illusions about voters for the third ticket at this time, but he does believe that a third ticket headed by himself would sweep Coolidge and the Republican party into oblivion, and that the third party movement would become the new leading party of the nation, certain to triumph four years hence.

Such a consummation.

Senator La Follette would choose as the greatest achievement of his career.

All the La Follette political followers are agreed that both parties will nominate conservative candidates. Some of them are much more moderate and optimistic about the prospects of a third ticket. The most exuberant go so far as to predict La Follette's election to the presidency, believing it to be assured if the Democrats, following the nomination of Coolidge by the Republicans, nominate a conservative like Underwood or Rainey.

Lieut. Erik H. Nelson, flight engineer, who was detained at Clover field because of adjustments necessary for his airplane, was expected to be here to fly north with his companions.

No Mishaps on Opening Day.

The three airplanes which made the 370 mile flight from Clover field, starting at 9:40 a. m., landed at 2:05 p. m. Lieut. Lowell Smith's machine was the first to land and was greeted by cheering hundreds, including Mayor Albert Elkins of Sacramento.

Smith was followed in order by Maj. Martin and Lieut. Leigh Wade. Escort machines swarmed around the World Flyer. There were no mishaps of any kind in today's flight. The speed averaged 80 miles an hour and over the Tehachapi mountains in southern California the machines flew at an altitude of 8,000 feet.

Strike Choppy Wind.

The start, while not under ideal flying conditions, was favorable to the purposes of the test—of flying conditions in all climates. The flyers faced a problem which prompted conferences and delayed the actual takeoff for more than two hours. The leg to Sacramento presented a wall of clouds hanging over the Tehachapi pass, and apparently covering the whole San Joaquin valley.

As events turned out, however, the aviators were not bothered by the clouds, but over the Tehachapi there was a choppy wind and at one time, Maj. Martin said, his machine narrowly escaped being thrown against one of the others.

ONE TERM FOR PRESIDENT LOSSES
IN SENATE VOTES

Washington, D. C., March 17.—Senate advocates of a one term for presidents received a double defeat in that body today. A resolution by Senator Willis [Rep., O.] that future chief executives be limited to a single term of four years was defeated 70 to 4; and a motion by Senator Harris [Dem., Ga.] to make the term six years was lost 45 to 16.

The resolutions were both offered as amendments to a joint resolution by Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.] proposing a constitutional amendment which would eliminate "short sessions" of congress by convening that body in January after elections.

Several senators explained their vote to prevent that issue being confused with the purpose of Senator Norris' resolution, which indicated they might support the plans of either Senator Harris or Senator Willis under different circumstances.

TOKIO, March 17.—Terror of a new earthquake in Japan was dispelled today when the Atami geysers resumed activity following nine days of dormancy. Prof. Ogawa, who was dispatched from the imperial university at Kyoto caused an eruption of the geysers by plugging up three nearby hot springs. The outpour followed three hours after his action. There was great public rejoicing.

GALPIN ACCUSED*Armstrong Tells of Undue Influence.

Sensational charges made against local politicians and government officials by Brice Armstrong, prohibition official, whose home at 2018 Mohawk street was bombed Sunday, were modified considerably by him yesterday.

Armstrong, confronted by his immediate superiors, withdrew all charges credited to him that tended to reflect upon the prohibition officials. Instead he praised Maj. Percy Owen, prohibition director, and District Attorney Edwin A. Olson.

He insisted, however, upon standing on the charges he had made concerning Homer K. Galpin, chairman of the Republican county central committee.

Galpin, he reiterated, had brought pressure to bear upon many prohibition officers.

"I made statements against certain politicians in Chicago that I will back to the end," he declared. "When I spoke of Homer Galpin I spoke of specific instances where prohibition agents stated to me that they were appointed by Galpin personally. I think it is time that we had a little political cleanup."

SMALL'S PARDON RECORD DISGRACE, ESSINGTON SAYS

Talks to Women About Crime Situation.

POLITICAL NOTES

Indorsing State's Attorney Crowe yesterday, James A. Patten said:

"In connection with my work with the Landis award I have found Mr. Crowe has done all that was possible that was legally required of him in our efforts to maintain law and order in connection with the building trades."

Commissioner of Public Works Evanson left Chicago last night to join other Democratic state candidates at Cairo, where they will begin the final week of their downstate tour.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Pledges for an honest, efficient administration of state affairs as outlined in his platform were made along the north shore and in the Fifteenth ward last night by State Senator Thurlow G. Essington in opening his Cook county campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Senator Essington lambasted the administration of his predecessor, Gov. Len Small, and in his speech at the North Shore hotel in Evanston declared Illinois will pay for fifty years for the excesses of the Small régime.

Talks to Women About Crime.

Earlier in the evening, in a speech before the Winnetka Woman's club, Essington made a general exposure of Gov. Small's pardon and parole system, particularly as it affects Chicago and its suburbs. He cited official records compiled by the Chicago crime commission to show that criminals of all classes have been coming out of the state penitentiaries faster than the courts can send them in.

In his Fifteenth ward meeting at the McPherson school, Lawrence and Winchester avenues, Senator Essington promised to build hard roads without political strings attached, and said there where they will serve the state best, and to fill in unfinished maps which Small has left open for political trading purposes.

Seen as Good Ones.

Senator Essington received receptions that support claims of his backers that he will receive a big majority over Small in the April 5 primaries. He regarded his first night of the Cook county campaign as an encouraging omen.

At Evanston, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe spoke with Senator Essington. Other candidates on the regular Republican county slate also addressed the McPherson school meeting, along with State Senator Ollie F. Glenn and Brig. Gen. Francis S. Dickson, former adjutant general of Illinois.

Says Public Is Shocked.

"In listening to the horrid details of some of the cases that have been reported the enormity of the individual incidents could not do otherwise than shock the most callous," Senator Essington declared at the Winnetka Woman's club. "The cases in question contain elements which make one wonder if justice still exists in Illinois—if influence or anything else can secure the freedom of a murderer, while an unfortunate victim who has made a comparatively slight error, but who has no influence or other means, grinds out his years of sentence at hard labor."

"Just what this all is coming to is indicated to me, and will be to you, by a page of official statistics which I have before me."

Cites Chicago's Crime Record.

These statistics were records of the Chicago crime commission, compiled from official records of the courts and the penitentiaries.

"This record," Senator Essington continued, "shows that last year there were sent to the penitentiary from Cook county 297 prisoners convicted of major crimes—crimes which the Commonwealth punishes severely so that the danger from them may be less."

Senator Essington, whose appearances in Chicago have been greeted by big turnouts, recited his platform for constructive legislation and efficient and economical administration of state affairs and the building of more hard roads.

"Some of these were released at the

the profit in carrying these communities at rates set by the Interstate commerce commission, a federal body that is out of reach and control of the legislature of Illinois.

"Third, The Tarsuns wants their man Essington for governor so that when the street railway franchises here in Chicago expire in February, 1927, the traction monopoly will have as governor their man Essington who will sign the bills passed by the traction controlled legislature to extend their franchises and permit the traction monopoly to charge $8, $9, or 10 centuries a car fare. The Tarsuns want that Gov. Small can't be fooled or coerced into signing any bill that has for its purpose the levying of excessive profit and tribute from the people."

Gov. Len Small opened his Chicago campaign with a speech at Orchestra Hall, repeating it with variations at three other points last night—at the Lyman Trumbull school, Social Turner hall, and the Lincoln Turner hall.

Through John L. Whitman, warden of Joliet penitentiary, pamphlets published by the state department of welfare, Gov. Small placed the burden of his pardon record on his board of pardons and paroles.

The pamphlets were distributed at the meetings. Warden Whitman presided at Orchestra hall. His statements defending the governor's pardon and parole record were confined principally to a letter written by himself and read:

"We one and all wish to thank you for your donation of Friday night.
The reason we picked on you is because you are a washer woman and naturally of a charitable disposition.
We thought you would like to know what the honest ladies have been sold and the money used for a good purpose."

"The governor has the power of appointing the board, but has nothing to do with its work in parole matters," the governor said, reading from the Whitman letter.

Upholds State's Parole System.
Mr. Whitman's letter dealt with paroles instead of pardons. It also spoke of what he called the scientific efficiency of the Illinois parole system, which other states have copied.

Gov. Small disposed of that feature with the statement that Whitman's letter and the department pamphlet amply answer all charges against his parole and pardon record.

Then the governor proceeded to attack the Tarsuns and the forces of the Lundin forces upon Senator McCormick and also upon Col. R. R. McCormick and The Tarsuns.

There are "three basic reasons" why The Tarsuns has attacked the present state administration, Small declared.

"First," he said, "the McCormicks believe that if they print in The Chicago Tarsuns columns of falsehoods every day assailing your governor, no one will dare expose their shame."

"Second, they believe that by an unprecedented campaign of falsehood they can distract the voters' minds from The Tarsuns' real motive, which is to get Small out of the way man Essington as governor, so that The Tarsuns and its owners can name a commerce commission to raise car fares to 8 cents or more as was done under Lowden."

Want to Elect Essington.

"The Tarsuns wants Small out and thinks man Essington in in order that the building of hard roads shall cease, so that the farmers in Illinois will not be able to haul their produce into Chicago on cement roads."

JUDGES RETAIN LAWYER IN ROW WITH A. CERMAK

DR. MOORE OF LOVE CULT FAME TAKEN FOR FRAUD

Action was begun yesterday by the Circuit court judges to determine what steps should be taken in the enforcement of their order providing thirty additional deputies for Sheriff
Peter A. Hirsch, who had been arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with operating a confidence game. Mrs.
Shirley Talcott, business manager of the cult, whose husband drowned him self two years ago because of his wife's cult activities, was also arrested.

The judges, in secret session, named Judge Kickham Scanlan to preside in the matter. He conferred with Attorney General Edward J. Brundage, who,
at the jurist's request, named Angus Roy Shannon as his special assistant to act in the court's behalf.

Mr. Shannon immediately began an investigation of the circumstances in volved in the case. The court board members recalled that two years ago he successfully had prosecuted members of the school board for contempt before Judge Scanlan.

Mr. Shannon's letter to the Tarsuns stated that he was "persuaded to attend.
He did, he stated, and believed in Mr. Moore's teachings. Raasch, his wife, and two children then went to Heaven City, a 130 acre farm operated by Dr. Moore at Harvard, Ill., where "purity, chastity, and poverty" is taught. It was here that he was persuaded to turn over $2,000 worth of furniture, jewelry, and cash, he said.

Call to the Tarsuns to appear before Judge Scanlan.

TAXED TOO MUCH, SMALL'S EXPERT GETS TAXES CUT

So Says Malone's Lawyer to Explain Charges.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The tax explanation of the American Mexican Refining company—a $100,000 corporation of William H. Malone, chairman of Gov. Small's state tax commission—is offered by Henry L. Blum, secretary and attorney for the company. But it does not explain. He says it was an error to place in 1922 even a $33,000 assessed capital stock valuation against the corporation by the state tax commission because the company is a mercantile concern. So it was completely wiped out in 1923.

Mr. Blum does not explain that if it was improper for the state board to assess the capital stock, then it was the duty of the local assessors. In 1923 the board of assessors attempted to do their duty. They placed a capital stock assessment of $50,000 against the Malone Oil company. That shows in the south town records, volume 1, page 16, line 6.

Here's the Proof.

Complaint No. 11,546 of the board of review was filed Aug. 31, 1923, against this valuation. It was signed by Henry L. Blum. A facsimile of the complaint, and the elimination of the $50,000 capital stock assessment is reproduced in another column. It shows that on Oct. 15 last a notice was sent to Blum to appear Oct. 18 and make his argument for his complaint. He evidently appeared and effectively argued, because on Oct. 19 the capital stock assessment was wiped out.

Blum says it was illegal for the state tax commission to assess this capital stock and then has the board of review wipe it off the books also. The result is that there is no capital stock assessment against the $100,000 corporation of Malone for 1923. Yet in the last six years Malone's oil companies have collected from two public treasures $117,399.85—two additional payments were found yesterday.

An Experienced Man.

Blum, as attorney for the company, says he advised it not to pay its taxes, due March 10, 1923, because, he contend, the capital stock assessment made by the state tax commission was illegal. The explanation he gives as the reason why its 1922 taxes have not been paid, and he says it is experienced in tax matters.

Other experienced tax attorneys, county collectors, and assistant state's attorneys in charge of tax collections say that the Malone Oil company cannot claim exemption from personal property taxes for 1922 because of any claim that capital stock tax is illegal. The oil company has not paid its personal property taxes for 1922, which were due and payable March 10, 1923.

Marked "N. A."

Now, switching to its 1922 taxes again. When Blum had the board of review mark a $50,000 capital stock valuation "N. A."—no assessment—he also had its personal property valuation decreased from $1,500 to $600. That is also shown in the facsimile of the complaint printed elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. Malone explained also. His statement referred to his personal property review mark a $50,000 capital stock valuation "N. A."—no assessment—he produced two receipts of tax bills as evidence of good intentions, but he had no receipt showing that he had paid his 1921 personal property taxes, due in 1922. He paid his 1920 taxes in 1922 and said that he thought he had paid his 1921 taxes. Malone in 1919 had the board of review list his personal property at $4,500 instead of less than one-tenth that amount. The county collector expects these delinquent taxes will be paid soon.

REGISTER TODAY, PLEA MAY ADD 100,000 NAMES

All Partisan Factions to Swell Lists.

BY PARKE BROWN.

With everybody pulling—churches and nonpartisan organizations as well as political leaders and precinct workers—there is some belief that today's registration may carry the total of Chicago's voting population well up toward the 1,000,000 mark.

If there were no general interest in the presidential preference primaries, the dopesters say, the figure would go high at least until the revision of the lists by the striking off of those who have died or moved out of their precincts, but the more conservative leaders hesitate to predict that anything like 100,000 new names will be put on the books.

That is the number required if the 1,000,000 total is to be passed. At the last registration the total was 965,848. That was a year ago, just before the mayoralty election, in which there was great interest.

Total Unregistered.

Nevertheless, it is argued that there are between 100,000 and 200,000 individuals in the city who are not registered, and that today's record may be heavy because of the amount of work put in to bring them out.

"There is no doubt," said Homer K. Galpin, chairman of the regular Republican county committee, "that the voters have been aroused. That is particularly true of the Republicans who see the opportunity for cleansing the party and reorganizing it for the big fight that is to come in the fall. Our workers have made house to house canvases throughout the city and we are now for a heavy Republican registration."

"While the Democratic primary contests may not be so heated as the Republican," said Martin J. O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic county managing committee, "the Democrats are alive to the situation and a majority of those eligible to register to-morrow will do so."

Democrats Busy, Too.

The Democratic organization has demonstrated that it is making good on its pledges to establish economy in the city and county governments and the party is prepared to extend into the national field its fight for the restoration of honesty and the establishment of decent ideals."

The Wohan's Roosevelt Republican club, which already had endorsed the anti-Small state and county ticket, completed the list of 15 endorsements at a luncheon meeting in the Hotel LaSalle yesterday. Following the lead of the Wohan club, it instructed candidates for delegates at large and a number of the unstructured candidates for district delegates.

THE DOWNFALL OF EUROPEAN DEMOCRACY.

Democratic government has ceased to exist in Europe. The French senate and chamber of deputies have conferred on the cabinet the power to decree laws and thus parliament has abdicated in favor of the cabinet as dictator.

Mussolini is dictator in Italy. Primo de Rivera rules in Spain. No one rules in Germany. Hungary is under dictatorship. Terror and starvation rule in Russia. Austria is ruled by the League of Nations. A labor minority is trying to rule in Great Britain.

The Italian parliament was dismissed by the Italian dictator as a fuddlesome, futile body which he would do without. He would promulgate laws instead of recommending them. He had marched into Rome with forces which merely demonstrated, but which were, if needed, an invading army.

The Spanish dictator had the army with him. No rising was needed. He suspended the parliamentary forms and took the dictatorship. The German parliament was dissolved because it was useless and hopeless, and Germany may be heading back to monarchy. The French parliament abdicated, but gave Poincaré law making power.

Poincaré accepts the responsibility of saving France, and J. P. Morgan becomes the real ruler. Poincaré can save France; he must do it with the aid of the international banker and to get that aid he must do as he is told.

The Dawes commission is a Morgan commission, and Poincaré, who has taken help from Morgan, must accept the findings of the Dawes commission or the help will be withdrawn and France will be in the ruins of its currency.

It is said that Poincaré, with his power to legislate by decree, will be only a pale Cromwell and will not exercise the free hand except to effect economies and provide additional revenues, but the senators and deputies have confessed their despair of democratic government for the present.

Even dictatorship has failed thus far in Europe. In Russia it has maintained itself, but it has torn the country to bloody pieces. In Germany it has failed. In Spain it is conducting an African war so miserably that it may fall any week.

Most of the European peoples have proved that they cannot govern themselves and they have yet to prove that they can find a way of being governed.

Democracy does not survive blow government. We hope America does not perish in discovering that by experience. The German parliament was sent home because it was split into so many divisions that it could not legislate. When a few people have so disintegrated that they cannot express their political judgments through two major parties they have become unstable. They have become a combination of warring groups out of which decision and action cannot come. The futile struggle of seeking group advantage and profit shakes Democracy to pieces and then there is ruin or the dictator.

STATE'S ATTORNEY CROWE.
RECORD.

Small's explanation of the pardons and parole record of his administration may be swallowed by any citizen who has reasons for doing so. The first defense set up is that the record is not of his making. If it were good that would not be said. It was even defensible Small would not avoid it and say that it was the work of the division of pardons and paroles. In part it was his own executive act, and in part the work of a division of his administration.

The second defense is that the pardons and paroles were justified. It is admitted that the panderers, violators of children, white slaves, thugs, etc., were paroled or given commutation of sentences. People who believe that such crimes are trivial or that they may be committed by persons ordinarily wholly respectable will be content with the justification. Many people will hold that they are not crimes which invite the clemency either of an executive or of a parole body.

It is a difference of opinion which can be expressed at the polls.

VIEWING MUSCLE SHOALS
WITHOUT PRIVATE PROFIT.

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under President Wilson, and notably friendly to Ford in the days of the peace ship and similar activities and theories arising from the mind and pocket of the manufacturer, has written a letter asserting that "it would be a public calamity to have this great national asset (Muscle Shoals) come into private hands upon any terms now possible to be secured."

The statement is interesting chiefly because of its source, and possibly valuable for its sounding of the course on which the Ford proposal seems to be shifting through Congress. It is important chiefly because of the fact that it is the statement of a man who has stood side by side with Henry Ford on numerous questions of policy. When such a man brands the Ford proposal as bad for the country it is as if Ford himself, detached from his personal interest and possibilities of profit, made the statement.

"Impatience to recover a few million dollars in money and modest prospects of immediate benefits to farmers are blinding us," Mr. Baker continues. That is precisely the view which would be expected from Mr. Ford himself if the position of the two men were reversed. The thing which prevents Mr. Ford from making such a statement on the question of public policy involved is his personal interest in the exploitation of Muscle Shoals. It is that personal interest which has distorted the whole proposition. It is that influence of personal interest, discounting the value of the Ford proposal, which must be kept in mind by congress if this immensely valuable public resource is not to be taken from its owners, the American public, and given to Henry Ford at a fraction of its real value, and at a fraction of what has been offered by equally reputable concerns.

TAX THE HEIR RATHER THAN THE ESTATE.

Sentiment is evident in the Senate in favor of an increase in inheritance taxes from the present 20 per cent to 40 per cent, as approved by the house in defiance of the recommendations of Secretary Mellon. As THE TRIBUNE has stated in the past, we believe the principle of heavy inheritance taxes is correct. Centralization and control of anything like a preponderance of the nation's wealth in a comparatively few hands is dangerous. The passing of such wealth and power in constantly increasing quantities to persons who have not earned it and have not revealed any ability to use it productively is dangerous.

The taxation of such inheritances to an extent which would make the destruction of organization in which such wealth is invested necessary to raise the cash to pay the taxes, however, is equally dangerous. A 40 per cent tax might easily impose such a burden upon an industrial enterprise that it could not survive in its present form, but would have to be sold out to persons probably unable to operate it successfully, or submit to a mortgage which would impel its resources beyond its ability to survive. Those are dangers which must be kept in mind with reference to inheritance taxes. Such taxes must cease to be an asset at the point where they discourage productive enterprise.

So much for the economic argument. The social argument, that it is bad for the country to have the vast fortunes and the great industrial organizations put into the hands of youthful wastrels who have done nothing to build them up, is still valid. But that may be taken care of in another way.

If the inheritance tax is placed upon the amount of the estate received instead of the amount bequeathed, it would be just alike to the government, the beneficiary, and to society.

Under such an arrangement, if a man bequeathed a count of 15,000 had a baby death rate of about 60, while those with an average count of over 100,000 had an average baby death rate of about 35. But we were agreed that the study of baby sickness did not show very much.

Cities having an average milk bacteriological count of 15,000 had a baby death rate of about 60, while those with an average count of over 100,000 had an average baby death rate of about 35. But we were agreed that the study of baby sickness did not show very much.

The same meeting received a report of the committee on pasteurization made by Dr. W. H. Price. This committee concluded especially a report by Dr. E. S. Godfrey Jr. of the New York state health department of sixteen instances where contagion had been purported to be spread by pasteurized milk.

Dr. Godfrey had investigated these sixteen outbreaks and found that many of them were due to milk which was not the cause of either. One was an epidemic of whooping cough in which there were 487 cases and twenty-two deaths. It was spread by milk from a high grade source of raw milk. The two other were typhoid epidemics. Neither was extensive. Both were charged to raw milk. The committee tried to find out if there was a parallel between the disease showing bacterial content in the milk, deaths of babies under 1, and deaths of babies from diarrhoea. This study was unsatisfactory. It did show that the baby death rate went up and down as the average bacterial count of the milk went up and down.

ESCAPING THE RUSSIAN CENSOR.

Recent stories on the situation in Russia cabled from Berlin by John Clayton ought to be compared to the news or lack of news concerning Russia printed in other metropolitan newspapers throughout this country and Europe to obtain an accurate idea of the situation. They prove beyond question that a man on the outside looking into Russia can give the world more information than a man on the inside looking out. The foreign correspondents within Soviet Russia today are hostages to prevent the printing of the facts, rather than reporters broadsheeting the facts.

The Tribune came to that decision some months ago when it was told by Soviet officials that its correspondents would be allowed within Russia to send out news only if their stories were satisfactory to the Soviet. Our correspondents were promptly withdrawn and stationed at the windows of Russia, so to speak, to observe what went on within and report the facts. They have been obtaining these facts by direct personal contact with travelers and other observers coming out of Russia and have been free to cable them, because they were safe beyond the vengeance of the Soviets.

Thus Mr. Clayton's recent stories of the spread of famine, misery, and cold throughout Russia, and the rapid development of impending revolt, are in the nature of scoops. No doubt other correspondents know the facts, but are not at liberty to disclose them. The Tribune believes its pride in its foreign news service is justified by the disclosure of these conditions.

PURE MILK IN CITIES.
N^o. 1. The large cities have become a magnet for the large number of Chicagoans who are not of the epidemic, large or small, of any form of contamination has been traced to milk in Chicago since 1916. In reporting to the International Association of Dairy and Milk Inspectors in 1923 Dr. G. K. Cooks said:

"Absence of any report of epidemic disease traced to pasteurized milk speaks highly for the present day efficiency of commercial pasteurization as a public health safeguard."

The committee concludes:

1. Pasteurization assists in the maintenance of abundant supplies of milk on the market.

2. Pasteurization is the only adequate safeguard for milk supplies. Pasteurization facilitates abundant milk supplies at prices lower than would otherwise be required.

In the investigation the committee got track of three rather good sized milk borne epidemics, but pasteurized milk was not the cause of either. One was an epidemic of whooping cough in which there were 487 cases and twenty-two deaths. It was spread by milk from a high grade source of raw milk. The two other were typhoid epidemics. Neither was extensive. Both were charged to raw milk. The committee tried to find out if there was a parallel between the disease showing bacterial content in the milk, deaths of babies under 1, and deaths of babies from diarrhoea. This study was unsatisfactory. It did show that the baby death rate went up and down as the average bacterial count of the milk went up and down.

With the remainder of New York state, in New York City live more than half the people in New York state as a whole. Ninety-eight per cent of the milk is pasteurized. In the city since 1917 there has been but one outbreak of milk borne typhoid. In the state outside the city the population is only 85 per cent of that of the city. Only 25 per cent of the milk is pasteurized. Since 1917 there have been thirty-seven epidemics of milk borne typhoid.

The committee concludes:

1. Pasteurization assists in the maintenance of abundant supplies of milk on the market.

2. Pasteurization is the only adequate safeguard for milk supplies. Pasteurization facilitates abundant milk supplies at prices lower than would otherwise be required.

1. Pasteurization assists in the maintenance of abundant supplies of milk on the market.

2. Pasteurization is the only adequate safeguard for milk supplies. Pasteurization facilitates abundant milk supplies at prices lower than would otherwise be required.

JAPAN'S BATTLE FLEET ANCHORS IN TSINGTAO BAY

Russia Gives China 3 Days to Ratify Treaty.

BY JOHN POWELL.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
Copyright: 1924 by The Chicago Tribune.
SHANGHAI, March 17.—A Japanese squadron, consisting of twenty-six ships, super-dreadnaughts, several battle cruisers, and a number of destroyers and submarines under the command of Admiral Suzuki, is now anchored in Tsingtao bay.

Although said to be on a peaceful visit, the appearance of the squadron is interpreted here as a significant gesture on the part of Japan to protect its financial interest in the Peking railway as guaranteed at the Washington conference. The Russian threats against Peking also may have something to do with the Japanese action pictures?

Mad Day $40,000,000.

Under the Washington agreement Japan relinquished the control of the railroad and other former German interests upon China's agreement to pay the $40,000,000 covering the cost of construction. Under the contract signed at Washington, China must pay interest on this sum for five years, after which time it has the right to pay off the entire amount.

Recently the Chinese military, acting under the direction of Gen. Wu Pei-fu, of Nanking, demanded control of the railway and ordered the officials to pay over a lump sum of $150,000 and $50,000 monthly to support the Chinese fleet anchored in Kiaschow bay.

Would End Chinese Ownership.

Comments made with this demand would force the railroad to default on the Japanese payments and ultimately bring about the return of the railway to Japanese control and the breakdown of the Washington agreement.

The Japanese auditor of the railroad protested against the looting of the line for the support of the Chinese militarists, and the present visit of the Japanese fleet is interpreted as a gesture toward his demands.

Russia Warns China.

(Chicago Tribune.)—The Chinese government having declined to ratify the agreement for resumption of relations between Russia and China, the latter has warned China that it will only wait three days for ratification.

The news that the Chinese government had declined to ratify the signature of its delegate, Dr. Wang, to the preliminary agreement with the Soviet representative, M. Karakhan, for the resumption of diplomatic relations reached Moscow in a Peking dispatch which said that M. Karakhan had informed the Chinese government that Russia would wait only three days for ratification.

Wm. Biedermann, Pioneer Coffee Importer, Is Dead

William E. Biedermann, member of Biedermann Bros., importers and roasters of coffee, died yesterday at his home, 7289 Emerald avenue, at the age of 82. During the Chicago fire he rendered services by hauling water in barrels from the lake for fire distribution.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow from the home to Sacred Heart church, where high mass will be celebrated. Burial will be in St. Boniface cemetery.

He is survived by two daughters and five sons.

Former Editor of Masons' Journal Dies in West

He was born in San Francisco in 1859 and was prominent in newspaper circles in Chicago. Funeral services will be held at Pasadena, Cal., under the auspices of Corona Lodge, No. 324, and the remains will be cremated, the ashes to be brought to Chicago later.

Trouser Wearing Girl Is Nabbed in Murder Case

Hazel White, 19 years old, who was arrested several days ago when she was found wearing men's clothing, was again taken into custody yesterday when she was found in a room she is wanted in Tulsa, Okla., as a witness in a "hammer slaying" case. Leonard Blodie, her companion, also a witness in the case, is being sought.

OUR over thirty years experience in making mausoleums and monuments has shown us that a horror of being buried in the ground at the expiration of our allotted period on earth is very general, and further, that the least heartrending way of caring for those who have gone before is in a private family mausoleum.

There is little one can do at such times, but we have contributed our mite of comfort in building family mausoleums so durably and accurately that the near ones can feel that they have done all they could have done.

One should always consider expense, and we therefore venture to state that we have built fully durable mausoleums for from $3,000 up to $200,000, and have erected them as far east as Massachusetts, as far west as California and as far south as Texas.

Among those erected locally are those of Peter Palmer, Judge E. H. Gage, E. J. Lehman, G. F. Swift, L. H. Moore of Loral & Hardy, Harry Powers, Michael Conley.

John Cudley, Michael Brand, Rudolph Brand, Benjamin Allen, Clayton Marks, C. H. Markham, Fred. H. Conley, Richard Oaks.

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAM

(Tuesday, March 18, 1924.)

[Central time throughout.]

Thomas J. Johnson, commissioner of the showmen's legislative committee of America, is scheduled to broadcast over KYW. Westinghouse station radio, at 9:30 tonight. His subject will be the aims and efforts of the legislative committee in cleaning up the carnivals and circuses of the country and elimination of objectionable features that have long been rampant in that profession.

The showmen's legislative committee was formed by the showmen themselves a year ago last February.

Tonight's WJAZ program will be of unusual interest because of an address by Emanuel Cohen, editor of Pathé News and Pathé Review. Mr. Cohen will answer for the benefit of the radio audience that oft-asked question: "How does Pathé get its cameras men to the scene of great events in time to take action pictures?"

NEW U.S. PRINCES OF CHURCH GIVE ROME BIG THRILL

Prelates Are Welcomed
by Vast Throng.

By FLOYD GIBBONS.

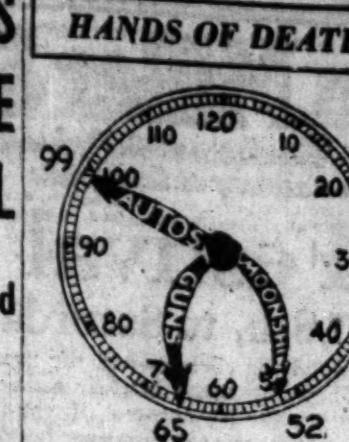

[Chicago Tribune Foreign Service.]
[Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, March 17.—Archibishop Mundelein of Chicago and Hayes of New York will call this morning upon Cardinal Gaspari, papal secretary of state, and register their presence in the Holy city. Officially the Vatican has no knowledge that the two American cardinal delegates arrived from Paris this afternoon, but unofficially all Rome is aware that the future wearers of the third and fourth red hats in the United States are here and ready for their elevation to the high Catholic dignity of seats in the sacred college.

Flashlights boomed like a miniature cannonade as the American archbishops stepped from the Paris-Rome express early this afternoon. The batteries of cameras and moving picture men were automatically barriers across the route of the clerical party as it made its way from the train shed to the waiting automobiles.

Greeted by Picturesque Throng.

Church dignitaries and ecclesiastical students in all variety of hat and gown and clerical apparel filled the streets of Rome, like a pageant in the world, composed a large portion of the throng which crowded the station. Interspersed in the crowd were American tourists, Italian military and naval officers and carbineers, with their families from other sources.

The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by auto, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1 last.

Father Shiel, remained at the hotel this afternoon, answering a flood of telephone calls and visitors who arrived to pay their respects. Both Archbishops Mundelein and Hayes dined this evening at the American college, where Archbishop Hayes is staying.

Pope's Illness Alarms.

LONDON, March 17.—[By United News.]—The Rome correspondent of the London Daily Express telegraphs that the health of Pope Pius XI is causing alarm, and from the papers suffering from arterio-sclerosis.

The Daily Express dispatch states that Pope Pius suffered a heart attack several days ago, and adds that his personal physician has arrived at the Vatican from Milan.

The correspondent reports that Vatican officials are preserving the greatest secrecy with regard to the health of the pope, but that he learns that Pope Pius finds that the Vatican receptions cause him great fatigue. The story is not confirmed from other sources.

BRADLEY HAS AN OPERATION AFTER NEW TRANSFUSION

A third blood transfusion operation was performed yesterday on Attorney Herbert E. Bradley, African explorer and big game hunter, who is critically ill at the Mayo Clinic Hospital.

One hour later, after the patient had rallied with the influx of iron blood, Dr. H. M. Richter operated to remove the tumor bearing area in Mr. Bradley's stomach. His condition was favorable last night, according to his physician, Dr. James Walker.

Mrs. Mary Hastings Bradley, writer and wife of the attorney, donated blood for the two former transfusions. Yesterday a "purchased" pint was transferred to Mr. Bradley's veins.

Notables Extend Welcome.

Among those meeting the party were European Commissioner E. L. Hearne of the Knights of Columbus, Mgr. O'Hearn, rector of the American College of Rome; Mgr. Biobe, secretary of Cardinal Bonzano; Bishop Cusio of Loretto, and Bishop Macchetti, formerly of the papal delegation at Washington.

Judge Morgan O'Brien of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Moran of New York.

Hundreds of Americans tourists desirous of seeing the public cemetery at which the Americans will be made princes of the church, have cancelled plans for departure and are remaining in the Holy City. The result is that the hotels are crowded to the limit, and new arrivals today found themselves forced to hunt living quarters. Up until a late hour tonight one member of Archbishop Mundelein's party was given a hotel accommodation and was paired with his baggage in a hotel corridor.

MUNSEY SELLS N. Y. HERALD TO REID OF TRIBUNE

New York, March 17.—[Special.]—The New York Tribune has bought the New York Herald. The deal was concluded today. The European edition of the Herald, published in Paris, is included.

The Herald, as a separate entity will pass out of existence with tomorrow morning's issue. The two newspapers will be combined starting with Wednesday's issue and published as one newspaper from the New York Tribune's new plant.

The title will be the New York Herald and the New York Tribune. Later this title will be shortened to the New York Herald-Tribune.

Munsey Tried to Buy.

The sale is said to have resulted from Mr. Munsey's efforts to buy the Tribune with the object of further developing his merger ideas. When Mr. Reid refused to sell the Tribune, because it was a "steal" to him from his father, Whitelaw Reid, Mr. Munsey proposed to sell.

Mr. Munsey characterizes the amalgamation of the two newspapers as inevitable for economic reasons.

"The great obstacle to amalgamation has hitherto lain in the fact that the owner of neither paper was willing to sell," Mr. Munsey said. "Meanwhile the costs of newspaper production in New York have increased higher and higher, until today they are appalling. The worst of the matter in the morning field is that the selling price of morning and Sunday newspapers has been held at a starvation price by the iron hand of divergent interests."

Represents Four Newspapers.

The combined newspaper will represent not only the Herald, founded by James Gordon Bennett in 1835, and acquired by Mr. Munsey four years ago for a price reliably reported to have been upward of $4,000,000 (a price, however, that included the Evening Telegram) and the Tribune, founded by Horace Greeley in 1841, but also the two other newspapers which Mr. Munsey bought and merged with the Herald, before he sold that newspaper.

Those two were the Press and the Sun. The merger leaves five morning newspapers in New York, not including Brooklyn.

The price at which Mr. Munsey parted with the Herald was refused tonight by both Mr. Munsey and Mr. Reid, but gossip has it that the figure approached that of $4,000,000.

TODAY IS REGISTRATION DAY. If you are not registered from your present address, you must register today to qualify yourself to vote in the primaries, state, and local primaries on April 8. All regular polling places are open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m.

HOOPER SPIKES CHARGE OF COLOR LINE DECISION

A. O. Wharton, one of three labor members of the United States railroad labor board, yesterday virtually charged that his colleagues had drawn the line in a decision from which he dissented.

In nailing the institution, Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the board, countered with an assertion that the Howell bill, indorsed by railway labor leaders and now pending in congress, would, in effect, perpetuate the ban on colored workers as railway union members, Mr. Hooper contended.

The issue was raised by an appeal of 135 unorganized colored employees on the St. Louis-San Francisco railway for restoration of pay rates received under federal control of the roads, when they ranked as brakemen.

Reply by Hooper.

Chairman Hooper epitomizes details of the dispute as follows:

"The carriers reclassified these colored employees and instead of reducing their rates and reduced their rates 112 out of the total of 145 agreed in writing to the carrier's action. Subsequently, they repudiated this agreement, and, in stereotyped, prepared statements, claimed they had agreed through 'fear of violence.' No evidence whatever of any violence or threat thereof was shown and the board could not sustain the claim."

The prevailing opinion, however, indicated the case would be held on the board's calendar and that it would be "treated as an application for reclassification and for the rates of pay of brakemen."

Barred by Unions.

Colored employees are denied membership to any of the standard railway organizations. The Howell bill, which would set adjustment boards for arbitration about as under the Newlands act, and abolish the labor board, would, in effect, perpetuate the ban on colored workers as railway union members, Mr. Hooper contended.

To this Mr. Wharton, in an interview, replied that the bill merely provided for "majority rule, the same principle upon which this government was founded."

keeping him bowlegged carrying the burden, but he now has his eyes set for the coming season and the promise held out by diversifying his crops.

The atmosphere seems to be somewhat more cheerful than six months ago, when it was saturated with gloom and despondency and an open winter may have had much to do with it. Old timers say not in forty years has there been such a winter, little snow, continued sunshine, almost balmy weather—Chicago by comparison seemed like Labrador.

Good Business Reported.

There has been much trading—eggs, poultry, and the like—and the towns have been doing more business than they expected. Business men in the larger centers say the state has turned the corner.

A great campaign is on for diversification.

experts at the agricultural college forecast an unprecedented increase in the acreage of crops included in the program. Everywhere the argument was being hammered home that one crop wheel raising, or "lazy man's farming," is agricultural folly. A large state is looked for, and a great increase in alfalfa, corn, clover, and other feed crops preliminary to an expansion of the live stock and dairy industry.

Experts say one-fifth of the North Dakota farmers are in excellent shape. These are they who diversify and on the average they are probably in better position than ten years ago, before the war started.

Growth in Dairying.

Dairying is growing space. The census shows that on Jan. 1 this year there were 533,000 milk cows on the farms, which was a 6 per cent gain for 1923. There is twice as much dairying as in 1910 and in the last four years North Dakota has risen from twenty-sixth place to sixteenth rank among the dairying states.

Also the banking situation is showing real betterment. Within the last two years some 600 banks failed in the two Dakotas, Montana, and Minnesota. There were too many banks. In the era of peak prices they sprung up like mushrooms. Many of them were fly-by-night concerns that went in to exploit the farmer. In North Dakota there was a bank for every 600 population.

BERGDOLL WILL RETURN TO U. S. AT LEGION'S BID

Agrees to Go to Prison, Hapgood Says.

nor's island, where he was awaiting appeal from his conviction. He received permission to search for the putative cache and had stopped in Philadelphia to sign legal papers.

Investigated by Congress.

He and his guards already had spent a day and a half at his mother's home when he got away. The manner of his escape was twice investigated by a committee of the House of representatives, but when it submitted its findings he was safely ensconced in Germany.

His own automobile was conveniently waiting at his door when he made his way out of a second story window while his guards were being entertained on the first floor. He left no trail, and the first definite news of him was his comment on the pleasantness of life in Germany.

Two attempts were made to kidnap him in Germany. In the second attempt last August one of his attackers was killed and another wounded. Lieutenant Griffis and his aids, who escaped with their lives, were sentenced to prison but recently released.

Convicted as Slackers.

Bergdoll was the son of a wealthy Philadelphia brewer who died a few years before the United States entered the world war. When he and his brother Erwin were called in 1917 to appear for physical examination for soldiers they ran away, and from August of that year until Jan. 7, 1920, when he was dragged from a window seat in his mother's house, police and federal agents searched this country, Canada, South America, and Europe for him. He was quickly tried and on March 17, 1920, he was found guilty of evading the draft.

He was sentenced to five years imprisonment. In reviewing the court martial's decision, Federal Judge Learned Hand said the appeal for a new trial was "as destitute of merit as any I have ever encountered," and he described Bergdoll as a "morbid coward." His property was seized.

Mother to See President.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 17.—(By the Associated Press)—Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, mother of Grover Bergdoll, said tonight that she expected her son to return to America shortly, and that she planned to see President Coolidge in his behalf.

"In all his letters," Mrs. Bergdoll said, "Grover expresses a desire to come home, and I think he will very soon. But we are having a lot of trouble now with Teapot Dome and the President may not have time to talk about Grover returning. When draft evader, is a refugee, experienced a new commotion today when a rumor spread that two Americans had arrived. The entire population turned out to be present at the new kidnapping, but were disappointed.

The two called on Bergdoll and had a long and peaceful talk with him. No revolvers or automobiles were sighted.

"You promise to help straighten out matters for me, but I want real guarantees, not promises," was Bergdoll's answer, rudely dismissing the callers.

Wants to Return to U. S.

Under his usual gruffness Bergdoll tried to conceal his anxiety to return to his wife and friends here.

"He wants to return because he has failed to find friends here. The local communists at first flock to him because they considered him a martyr through his friendship for Germany, but their faith in him has dwindled since.

He claims he is willing to serve a short sentence upon his return to the United States. The Berlin foreign office, which avowedly fears the possibility of further incidents if Bergdoll remains in Germany, has asked the Baden government "to simplify all procedures and red tape for Bergdoll so he can be permitted to leave Germany.

The foster father, refusing to give up his fight, appealed the case again yesterday. He was partly successful.

The Appellate court reversed Judge Hurley's finding and ordered a new trial. They held that the boy had a right to be heard and ordered that he be permitted to testify at the new hearing.

COURT DIRECTS A RETRIAL ON BOY'S $50,000 FUTURE

The law two years ago took Robert William Ross, 12, from a home of wealth, from a heritage of $50,000, and made him again a penniless waif in an orphanage. Yesterday the law turned all that aside and ordered that Robert be given another chance to be restored to his former home.

The two called on Bergdoll and had a long and peaceful talk with him. No revolvers or automobiles were sighted.

"You promise to help straighten out matters for me, but I want real guarantees, not promises," was Bergdoll's answer, rudely dismissing the callers.

Wants to Return to U. S.

Under his usual gruffness Bergdoll tried to conceal his anxiety to return to his wife and friends here.

"He wants to return because he has failed to find friends here. The local communists at first flock to him because they considered him a martyr through his friendship for Germany, but their faith in him has dwindled since.

He claims he is willing to serve a short sentence upon his return to the United States. The Berlin foreign office, which avowedly fears the possibility of further incidents if Bergdoll remains in Germany, has asked the Baden government "to simplify all procedures and red tape for Bergdoll so he can be permitted to leave Germany.

The foster father, refusing to give up his fight, appealed the case again yesterday. He was partly successful.

The Appellate court reversed Judge Hurley's finding and ordered a new trial. They held that the boy had a right to be heard and ordered that he be permitted to testify at the new hearing.

They are through investigating I will surely see him."

The Influence of Railroad Efficiency on Credit Conditions

THE connection between efficient transportation of merchandise and easy credit conditions may not be apparent at a first glance. It is no tax on the memory, however, to recall that the reverse is true. Inefficient transportation contributes heavily to make money rates high and credit conditions tight.

The railroads were returned to their owners by the Federal Administration in a crippled condition. Freight was moved slowly and with difficulty. There was congestion at the terminals. Embargoes were frequent. Shippers could not get cars to send freight out and consignees could not get delivery of goods shipped. A bad situation was made worse by inefficient transportation. Credit resources were taxed, money rates went up and liquidation was necessary.

How was it in 1923?

All records for volume of freight moved were broken.

The railroads, rehabilitated by courageous and efficient management, handled freight expeditiously. Sales were brisk, goods sold were easily replaced, turnover was rapid. Rapid turnover means higher profits and smaller capital invested.

To these conditions which must accompany prosperity, the railroads were heavy contributors.

Adequate transportation facilities are as necessary to prosperity as ample credit.

Railroad efficiency must be maintained and it cannot be maintained if operations are to be made difficult by hostile legislation and constant threats of lower rates and smaller earnings.

The business world has much at stake in this railroad controversy. It should demand that the railroads be given a fair chance to work out their salvation under existing law. They ask only a fair chance.

Let the railroads alone!

MOVE TO PUSH BONUS AHEAD OF TAX IN SENATE

Washington, D. C., March 17.—[Special]—With the passage of the soldier bonus bill in the house tomorrow bonus advocates are expected to make an effort to have the senate finance committee give precedence to this measure over the tax bill.

The finance committee was in session again today but made little progress on the tax bill, and prospects are it will take two or three weeks more at least to finish consideration of the measure. There has been no serious discussion of tax rates as yet, all the time of the committee having been devoted to administrative provisions and estimates.

In urging that the bonus bill be given precedence over the tax bill it will be argued that tax legislation ought not to be passed until it is certain whether or not the government is to undertake the expenditure of $100,000,000 annually of adjusted compensation to former service men.

If the bonus bill is given precedence in the senate finance committee, it will delay action on the tax bill. Members of the committee have been unable to remain in session more than an hour or an hour and a half a day owing to the pressure of investigations and debates.

Consideration of the bonus bill would require at least a week, and probably longer. Whether the finance committee will accept the house's insistence for bonus payments is doubtful. If this plan is not satisfactory, it will require time to frame a new bill. When the bonus bill is reported to the senate members of the finance committee, it will have to handle the bill on the floor, and this will so occupy their time as further to delay tax legislation in committee.

The bonus bill probably would not be voted by the senate before May 1, even if it is given precedence over the tax bill. About that time there will be a drive on to pass the annual appropriation bills.

U. S. REJECTS NEW PARIS PROPOSAL ON DEBT PARLEY

International Agency "Not Necessary"

Washington, D. C., March 17.—The United States, in a formal note to Ambassador Jusserand, made public here today by the state department, rejects the suggestion of the French government for the creation of an international agency to deal with questions arising out of relief credits extended to European countries during and just after the world war.

The note was signed by Secretary Hughes and dated Dec. 14, 1923. "While this government was happy to cooperate with the other interested governments," the note said, "with a view to providing the necessary credits of the relief supplies which were so urgently needed in order to facilitate the prompt and practicable solution of the pressing relief problems arising in Europe after the conclusion of the war, it has never been the opinion of the government of the United States that it would be necessary to establish an international agency for the settlement of questions arising out of its advances to foreign governments and under existing regulations this country could not undertake to execute its authority through any international agency."

The relief credits mentioned in the note have to do principally with advances made by the United States to Poland, Austria, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia.

The slowing down of the mouth glands is a serious cause of tooth decay.

For then the acids of the mouth are allowed to form and slowly eat into the enamel. By making the mouth glands flow normally the acids are neutralized as fast as they form. The teeth are kept cleaner than you can brush them.

Rebeco is the tooth paste that makes your mouth glands more active. It gently stimulates them to flow normally.

Thousands of men and women find that Rebeco leaves their mouths with a live, clean feeling that lasts for hours. This is because Rebeco does more than clean temporarily; it puts the mouth into condition so that it stays clean.

of "Penny Day."

"Dollar Day" is announced.
Chicago school children had their "penny day," and they raised over $8,000 toward the fund which will purchase for the citizens of Chicago, to enjoy permanently, the only portrait of a President now hanging in the Art Institute, the famous Gilbert Stuart painting of George Washington. Adult Chicagoans, who believe that money contributed to a patriotic art is money invested in better citizenship, are to have their "Dollar Day."

On this day, the date to be announced later this week, every citizen of Chicago will be asked to contribute at least one dollar toward the fund of $75,000.

Voluntary Bodies at Work.

Centering in the offices of the portrait fund drive in the art institute, where Frank G. Logan, vice president of the institute; Robert B. Harsha, its director, and Paul Schulze, head of the mayor's committee of seventy-five, mapped out plans for Dollar Day, came word that voluntary campaigns were under way throughout the city.

The Young Men's Interacted, too. Every member of the Anna Harmon chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution of Glen Ellyn is pledged to raise $5 according to word from Mrs. C. Glenn Whitlock, regent of the chapter.

Scores of men and women visited the Orchestra hall box office to purchase tickets for the Chicago Symphony orchestra, which includes such Mme. Edith Mason, lyric soprano of the Chicago Civic opera, and Lee Patterson, pianist, have donated their services. The concert takes place Tuesday evening, March 25.

Children to Fete Again.

Not content with their previous subscription, the school children of district 8 yesterday sent in an additional contribution of $149.64. Millions of Dollars worth of Toilet preparations will be bought in the Plain Dealer's Market this year

MAKERS of toilet preparations know Cleveland and Northern Ohio as one of their most profitable outlets in America.

Here are 42 wholesale druggists and 1039 retail drug stores. Here too, are 117 department stores, 1359 general stores and innumerable shops that cater exclusively to women.

And what is fully as important from the manufacturers' standpoint is this impressive fact—

Through one newspaper—and at one advertising cost—they can reach and sell the buyers of this whole rich Three Million Market.

For instance:—

98 national advertisers of toilet preparations used Cleveland newspapers last year. 83 advertised in the Plain Dealer. 35 used the Plain Dealer ALONE—over four times as many exclusive toilet preparation advertisers as used all other Cleveland newspapers combined.

Of the Cleveland manufacturers advertising toilet preparations every single one used the Plain Dealer.

You cannot misinterpret the judgement of these advertisers. They know the Plain Dealer has the BUYERS.

They realize that the Plain Dealer has a tremendous appeal to women—and it is women who buy the bulk of toilet preparations.

The Plain Dealer's Daily Magazine Pages—often as many as four in a single issue—are an institution among the women of Cleveland and Northern Ohio. They are written by women—to women—exclusively about women's activities and women's interests.

Further than that, of all the home delivered Plain Dealers, 91.9% remain in the home all day. Women read the Plain Dealer as regularly as the men—and are influenced by it.

The Plain Dealer—with the largest circulation of any Ohio newspaper—is the family newspaper of Cleveland and all of Northern Ohio.

It is the one Cleveland newspaper that can give makers of toilet preparations the combined consumer-trade influence that is so necessary to the complete success of their advertising.

Whether your product is new and unknown or old and well established in this important market, strong, consistent advertising concentrated in the Plain Dealer will help you do your selling job.

DRAINAGE CANAL BILL HITS GALE AT LAUNCHING

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Washington, D. C., March 17.—[Special]—Chicago's fight to obtain congressional sanction for the diversion of water from Lake Michigan up to a maximum of 16,000 cubic feet per second for drainage through the Chicago drainage canal was launched today before house committees on rivers and harbors.

The committee began hearings on the bill offered by Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill.] authorizing the sanitary district of Chicago to take water from the lake and appropriating $3,700,000 to dig a nine foot channel from Utica to Grafton in the Illinois river. This proposed improvement, which contemplates the removal from the river of necks and dams constructed by the state, is a part of the lake to the gulf waterway urged by commercial interests in Illinois and nearby states.

Canada Divers Water.

Representative Madden [Rep., Ill.] had referred to the committee the resolution of the sanitary district urging an investigation of the amount of water being diverted by Canadian power interests at Niagara and charging that 7,000 second feet are being diverted in excess of the limitation under the treaty.

Notice was given at the hearing by Representative Voigt [Rep., Wis.] that five groups located in the great lakes states would oppose the provision of the bill legalizing the present practice of the Chicago sanitary district in tapping Lake Michigan. He said that the interests for which he spoke, among them the legal department of Wisconsin, were opposed to the diversion of lake waters at Chicago on the ground that it seriously menaced the interests of navigation by lowering the water level.

One Thousand Fired a Second.

Questions put to him by Chairman Dempsey [Rep., N. Y.] of the rivers and harbors committee indicated that Dempsey favors limiting the flow to 1,000 cubic feet a second. He also said the committee, if it acted at all, would be constrained to authorize an eight foot channel in the Illinois river.

Mr. Haynes urged that the Hull bill be passed in furtherance of the lake-to-gulf waterway. He said that as a result of the coast to coast competition made possible by the Panama canal, Chicago and other middle western centers will be steadily winning ground.

He said this could be remedied by an all-water route to the gulf.

Speaking for the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, C. A. Livingston insisted that any legislation passed should contain those essentials:

First—Provision for an adequate waterway that will carry barge traffic at Second—Provision for liquidation of past damage claims against the sanitary district of Chicago, chiefly resulting from overflows, and prompt adjudication of any possible future damage claims.

Third—Protection against pollution by raw sewage by means of dependable sewage purification works.

He said that an adequate all-water route to the gulf was needed by all midwestern shippers.

PACKERS WIN BIG POST-WAR BACON SUIT FROM U. S.

Washington, D. C., March 17.—[Special]—The meat packing industry today won a hard fought case against the government for claims amounting to millions of dollars for bacon supplied during and after the war. The victory for the packers came through a decision of the United States Court of Claims, which announced an award of $1,077,368.30 to Swift & Co. of Chicago. The total claim made by the company was $1,500,000.

The decision is looked on as a precedent for the awarding to other packers of claims of a similar character.

The decision automatically throws out of court a counter claim filed about two months ago by the department of justice against Swift & Co. involving the exact amount demanded by the company.

The government based its counter claim on alleged excessive prices

During the war the government asked the packers to produce at capacity with the understanding that the government would take the entire output for its armed forces. The size of the requirements and the time in which they were to be produced made it necessary for the packers to produce a "cured" bacon not of the ordinary commercial nature, a fact known to the government. The bacon also was packed differently and prepared in larger sizes.

After the armistice the packers continued production of this class of meat for the army, having no orders to cancel the contract. Suddenly it was claimed by the packers, the war department refused to accept any more bacon.

Paying Wages by Check Saves Pay Roll of $4,000

The fact that wages were paid by check instead of in cash at the Grand Sheet Metal Works, 920 West 19th street, saved the company from losing a $4,000 pay roll yesterday. Three bandits, evidently informed as to the customary times of payment, held up the office and forced a dozen employees into a rear room. They got $21,500.

Cork, Linseed Oil, Burlap —that's Linoleum

WHEN you think of linoleum, do you know what it really is?

Linoleum is a floor material, invented over sixty years ago.

But the colors and designs in which modern linoleum is made are NEW. They have opened up many new uses for linoleum as a floor for rooms where formerly linoleum was never thought of. But there is nothing especially new about the way genuine linoleum is made, or the materials that go into its making.

Linoleum is made of cork, oxidized linseed oil, and burlap.

Because linoleum is made of cork, the linoleum floor has the qualities of cork. It is durable and quiet and non-absorbent. The linoleum floor keeps the heat in and the cold out—just as the large cork does in the thermos bottle.

When the powdered cork that goes into linoleum is mixed with linseed oil, it takes on added qualities of toughness and smoothness.

A beautiful floor, permanent and easy to clean.

Linseed (flaxseed) oil gives linoleum its name—linoleum. It also gives linoleum its smooth surface that makes it the

RUSSIA TENDING TO SOFT PEDAL RED RED POLICIES

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 17.—From a Russian just arrived in London from Moscow I have learned some interesting facts about the relations of the various communists to each other and also valuable information about the attitude of the masses towards the soviet government.

The man who has given me this information is a business man, rather anti-than pro-bolshevik, but completely outside of politics. He is in close touch with government circles, being a specialist, and his information is exact.

Matter with Trotsky.

First of all, the rumors about M. Trotsky's arrest, exile, etc., are false. My informant is personally acquainted, and I believe related to one of the doctors under whose treatment M. Trotsky has gastric ulcers, and has been suffering from constant pain and vomiting for months. Everything has been tried in the way of cures, etc., with no results. Finally, it was decided to try the waters in one of the Caucasian watering places, perhaps Gagra, but my informant is not sure. He will return to work in about two months, as he is better and is vomiting less frequently now.

Second, M. Trotsky is on perfectly good terms with the whole so-called old guard of the communist party. He is quite solid with them on all points of policy, but he, like all the others of the old guard, is not on good terms with the extremists, who are daily growing more and more isolated. On the other hand, he is extremely popular with all the old regular army people, whom he has protected and given positions in the army. They literally worship him, since he has reconstructed the army, with their assistance and advice.

Sky of Romanoffs.

Though these old régime soldiers would like a change in Russia, they are not keen on a restoration of the Romanoffs partly because they fear ill treatment for themselves, as they have served in the Red army, and partly because they realize that restoration means chaos for a long period again, and perhaps a change in the national policy of Russia.

They are quite satisfied now that the soviet government is a good guardian for Russia's national interests, in spite of the bad condition inside of Russia. These latter are changing daily for better. The provinces are still hell on earth, but in Moscow life is becoming daily more normal in every way. This, in spite of occasional snares of the cheka against the intellectuals.

Rykov's Bad Hangover.

Now as to M. Rykov. He is really ill, having trouble from too much drink. He has gone to the Caucasus for some weeks to recuperate. He is popular everywhere, even amongst his own party. This is astonishing, because he recently again repeated his famous round of the Russian situation:

"We have got ourselves into a hell of a mess, and we have got to get out and put things straight in whatever way we offer them."

This is sacrifice of the communist principles.

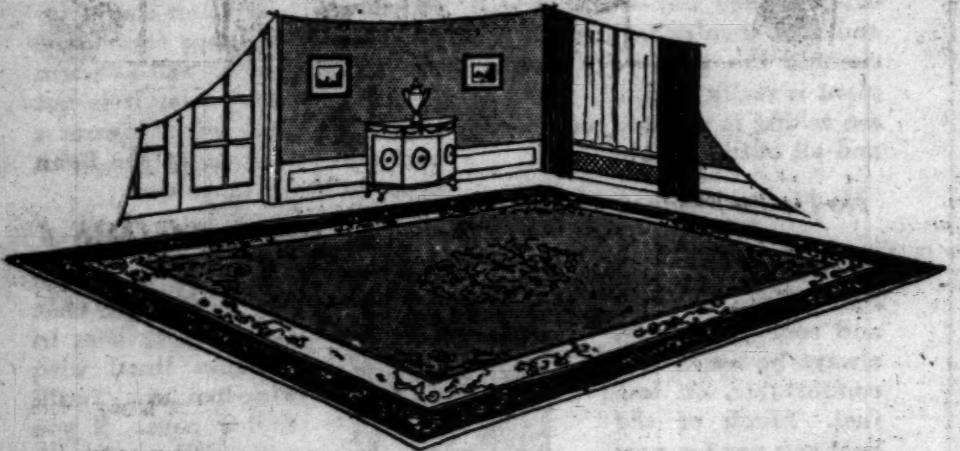

A really interesting fact is that personalities are ceasing to count, because after all there is now nothing trying to reconstruct in the only way possible—by a national constructive policy. This is why the party of the "house in order" is growing. It is the center party of moderation, sacrificing extreme communist measures, but working through these sacrifices to keep certain moderate Socialist ideals.

Radek a Moderate.

The extreme left is growing in unpopularity in the party—M. Zinoviev especially, and M. Bucharin—because they and the Third International are interfering in the arduous work of reconstruction. Even M. Radek is with the moderates.

It is not a question of moderation at the bottom; it is a question of practical methods of dealing with M. Rykov's "hell of a mess."

My to the time Margaret Verity and her widowed mother were brought to the home of Mrs. Verity's husband in 1914.

Before Margaret's twelfth birthday she had a check for five pounds as a birthday present. She used it to buy a first class ticket to the circus, a servant, Mountie, and he asked her to go with him. She had only a few coins, but she had a friend, Charles, who had a box of men's underwear. She gave him the money and he bought a brand new suit.

Mountie, having shared with Charles, was to the time Margaret Verity and her widowed mother were brought to the home of Mrs. Verity's husband in 1914.

That night she went to the Ritz-Carlton, and was to take place at the Ritz-Carlton. As curiosity remains the body was to come, but it was to be Uncle Tom, who were to be Margaret's.

"And you," added Mrs. Verity, "had to bring your mother along?"

"And you, Eric," Margaret said.

"Well, thank heavens, had to help me to live through my re-Cynthia?"

Cynthia Oddley, I noticed, had turned her sharp intelligent version of herself, and I was to meet her again.

"A fearful curse. What about her home?"

"And bring her along?"

"Obviously bring her along."

"Even then; they will wonder."

"O' Claude, don't be such a fool before them, won't there?"

Between her teeth, I got the green light. Something in the look.

Already, indeed, that girl gave me the key. I had caught that we knew.

Without reason, there flashed through my mind the girl friend of Margaret's. Cynthia, I have to look of one other person whom I had known. This other person had slipped into the grip of a repellent habit. This other person had begun by flirting with drugs, experimenting with this narcotic and that stimulant. This person had ended up in the long in a particularly horrible struggle.

Details of that struggle began to crowd in upon my memory. But they were details I had to make myself forget. I dismissed them now. It was too wild a dream; just past a trick of my own imagination.

I took my leave and went downstairs, followed by one of the other callers; the young man who had been sitting with his back to the light.

Outside there was a bit of a November fog on. But heaven how fresh it felt, in comparison. What a relief to get out into it, after that stifling den I had left, thick with scent and smoke, tea, cocktails, brilliant, Oriental draperies, face powder, bell peppers, hyacinths, and humanity mingled.

What a relief, too, after that babel of contradictions, chattering, to find oneself answering the pleasant voice of one quite different young man! I hadn't caught his name. Was it Margaret's bodyguard? He seemed, as I say, different.

Quite a modern! He had the clean cut others. But he had not joined in as to which of them had been in the races. Not that I caught if he didn't see his face until we got into notice that although it was a cold day.

All about him there was something suggesting open spaces, wind, fresh air, imagination) a fearless frankness.

He was big, bold, but not of those well-preserved beauties.

"Are you going my way?" he asked. His manner was friendly and pleasant. What time do you make it?

Before they close?" So as we walked along he showed me a ring. He smiled a little, adding, if you are going to ask that, my fiancee has dropped a stone on me.

He was engaged? I found my wonder, what the fiancee was like; if looks can be deceiving, I thought. This one naturally noticed me, too, and we met with the same smile.

He told me, "I've been abroad, the old man. That's his uncle Tom, with the 2nd floor. I've given him a room in correspondence, of course, with Mrs. Verity. I said something conventional and we have been talking for a number of years.

Young Mount replied, "Then you're engaged?"

Placing Parents First on the List of Unsung Heroes

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A small news item given space of about two inches in a metropolitan daily, and on an obscure page, was headlined: GIVES LIFE FOR HIS SON. And the story reads:

Last October Fred C. Benzinger, 12 years old, was run over by a truck, and the flesh of his right leg above the knee was badly mangled. The only thing that could save the leg, the doctors declared, was to graft skin from another's body.

Fred's father and mother both volunteered. And sixty inch square patches of skin from each of the parents were grafted.

The boy showed signs of improvement, and Mrs. Benzinger did apparently none the worse for the operation. But the father, Fred C. Benzinger Sr., died today, after four months of pain at the Meridien hospital. The son will soon be discharged as well and is strong as before the accident. Mr. Benzinger was 41 years old. He was a Spanish-American war veteran. Besides his widow and son he leaves two other children."

The above story appeared at a time when columns were given over to the return of a young soldier who had been captured by the Germans during the capture of the infamous Bergdoff. We do not wish for a moment to belittle the hero moved by patriotic fire. The youth of the country is immensely benefited by exploits born of a love of its native land. We cannot have too many shining examples of patriotism.

But we were moved at the time to thoughts of the unsung heroes of the world. How many there are of them will be known only to the recorder of good deeds. The world must be full of them who could never be the poster world it is. And we hazard the opinion that parents make up the great percentage of them.

The sacrifices they make uncomplainingly, and too often without a single word of appreciation from those for whom they would lay down their lives if the emergency demanded, are something only a parent can understand; only a parent can understand that it is not a sacrifice but a communion of love.

One hears so often from the lips of the modern young that they owe their parents nothing; that the parents brought them into the world without consulting them and, therefore, beyond being fed and clothed, they are no longer their parents' business.

Neither the heart nor the wisdom of age is given to youth, and we cannot quarrel with the young for their heedlessness. There will come a day when they will know and understand much that is in the heart of a father and mother.

When we read the insignificantly placed story of Mr. Benzinger, we hoped it would reach the eyes of one hardened young modern of college age who has paled his parents of every comfort and luxury of life to satisfy his reckless extravagances.

Recently this boy was heard to say: "Well, they ought to do that for me. I'm not the only child."

Truth is, they could do more than that for him. They would sacrifice their lives smilingly. Such is the beauty of parental love.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Informality Is Best.
Dear Miss Blake: Please let me know whether it is proper for a man to thank the young woman or for the young woman to thank the man for the compliment. I am taking a young girl out for the first time. I am at a loss to know whether I should thank her for letting me take her out, or if I should wait until she thanks me for the evening.

Puzzled.
The courteous thing is for the young man to thank the girl for the pleasure of her company for the evening. She is not supposed to thank him, the assumption being that he is the privileged one. When he makes his pretty speech she responds with a graceful comment about what a pleasant evening she is having. An informal remark from the man such as "It was awfully nice of you to give me the evening" is best.

Society Speeds Up Membership for Civic Work

Two meetings engrossed attention yesterday afternoon. Edward Warren Everett of 212 Lincoln Park West, the president of the membership committee of Chicago Civic Theater association, and at the Hickok studio in Arts building the committee of the American Friday night orchestra gathered. Mrs. Erich Gerst, chairman, presided at the meeting, which was followed by a Rockefellers-McCormick and Hamilton McCormick portion. Guests which are soliciting 5000 members for the association were announced by Mrs. Gerst that the Oak Park women organize under the direction of Louis E. Yager to work on the project. The Oak Park women meet April 2 at the Oak Park when Donald Robertson will speak.

Antonin Barthelemy, chairman of the Barthelemy meeting, Mrs. Juliet Barrett Rubles, his wife, announced the list of speakers. There will be numerous parties Friday night, almost all box holders having planned to train their guests before the meeting.

Woman's Club Buys
New $125,000 Home

Twenty-seven years ago fifteen members of the North End Woman's club formed a building committee and pledged themselves to earn $100 each for a fund which was to give the club a home of its own. The women sold home made cakes. They took care of their neighbors' children. They even bid chores at so much an hour for their husbands.

The fund grew. The club enlarged its membership to 500. And the $100 self-sacrifice pledge increased.

Yesterday, Mrs. D. T. Phillips, president of the club, at the suggestion of the membership held at the Northern Masonic temple, announced the purchase, or $125,000, of the residence at the northwest corner of Granville avenue and Sheridan road.

Mrs. Arthur Berland, chairman of the building committee, explained that in making this purchase the club had disposed of its property at 6127 Kenmore avenue.

"By offering prizes and holding competitive contests for architects, builders, and artists, the plans for a goodly number of standard buildings for the various purposes needed in our city could be obtained for the benefit of the public."

New York, March 17.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan will have their home at their home, 21 East 47th street, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dryden Pease and Miss Perrin of Ardsley, N.Y., will leave for Europe May 1. Mr. and Mrs. Pease and their daughter will leave New York on March 27 with Mr. and Mrs. Duncan for a two months' trip to California.

Mrs. William Vanderbilt, who has been spending several weeks in the south, accompanied by her daughters, Miss Muriel Vanderbilt and Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, will return to New York at the end of the week.

N. U. PROTESTS RULING OUT OF RELAY TANKERS

SWIM POINTS CHANGED

Due to a mistake in crediting relay events in which Northwestern University was disqualified, swimmers of Minnesota last Friday were erroneously credited with second place in the Big Ten meet at Bartlett gymnasium, as having gained 18 points, when, as announced yesterday by Coach J. H. White of University of Chicago, Michigan finished next to the winning Purple, with 14 points.

It was discovered that instead of crediting the Wolverines with 6 points in the 100 yard relay event, the Gophers were awarded 8. The Gophers and Iowa tied for third place with 12 points each, and Chicago and Indiana were tied for fourth, with 11. Wisconsin gathered 10 and Illinois 4.

A formal protest against the disqualification of the Northwestern university relay team in the conference swimming meet at Bartlett gym last Friday night was lodged by Dr. O. F. Long, chairman of the Purple faculty committee on athletics, yesterday at the request of Coach Tom Robinson.

Four affidavits accompanying the protest declare that the man who tapped Ralph Breyer off missed his first swing, and when he pulled his hand back to touch Breyer again, the Purple record holder had taken to the water.

No further protest will be lodged against the decision that C. A. Reinke of Michigan was the half mile, Academic Director Evans declared yesterday. The Purple swimmer has been in an uproar for the last two days over the decision of the judges.

Hill Makes Statement.

"This is the second time that we find the bums out of commission," said Coach Frank Hill. "Northwestern has the reputation of being a good lose, but when the same man gets away with what Reinke did Saturday, after he had fouled Martin at the Illinois relays, it's time we raised a little howl."

Twenty-six candidates responded to Coach Maury Kent's first call for baseball men yesterday, and took an hour's workout in Patten gym. Seven veterans returned to the team.

Ralph Bengtson, alternate pitcher in 1933; Pulley, ineligible last season but a regular in 1923; Watt, an outfielder who has done a bit of hurling, and Elizabeth, who pitched in some games or two, turned out. In addition Tim Lowry, Russ Rapp, and Varnay rookies, will be drilled in the flinging game, as Coach Kent is looking for providers.

Other Veterans Report.

Walt Stegman, catcher; Arnold Kiehr, first baseman; Joe Dempsey, second baseman; Capt. Bill Johnson, center fielder; and Bob Nelson, left fielder, were the veterans to step out. Bill Christensen is expected to handle this, while Bill McElwain, who has not played ball since his freshman year, may become regular shortstop. Seidel and Chott also are considered in field possibilities, with Karskoff and Gohn as alternates for the outfit.

OSBORNE AFTER WORLD MARK IN MEET TOMORROW

When the Central A. A. indoor track and field championships are held in the Broadway armory tomorrow night, Harold Osborne, the former University of Illinois all around athlete, who is now competing under L. A. C. colors, will attempt to break his own world's indoor record of 6 feet 5 inches in the running high jump.

Osborne established the new mark in the L. A. C. handicap games held last January. Aside from Osborne, Jim Russell of the University of Chicago, who won the event in the Big Ten indoor games at Patten gym last Saturday night, will be a contestant, as will Dewey Alberts of the C. A. A.

Osborne and Alberts, together with Tom and Jim Hoskins of the C. A. A., will fight it out again in the standing high jump and standing broad jump. All three approached records in both events.

Ed Hay, the redoubtable middle distance runner of the L. A. C., is expected to cut up a few caps in the middle distance runs. Coach Johnny Behr is undecided in what events Ray will run, but it is a certainty he will be anchor man on the L. A. C. medley relay team.

As it will be the last indoor set of games of the season for most of the contestants, some sparkling performances are expected. Aside from the championship events, there will be four contests, including a one and seven-eights mile relay for high schools and two events for women.

Proceeds of the event will go to the Olympic fund necessary to send the American team to the world's games in France this summer.

FARM & GARDEN RIDGEWAY

HUMUS "ROCK FOUNDATION" FOR VEGETABLE GARDEN.

The foundation of every garden is a rich soil containing an abundance of humus and all the various chemicals such as nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium, essentials in the production of plants. This is the reason to be had laying the garden foundation. It doesn't require wheelbarrow loads of black humus dug up at the edge of a forest where leaves have been molding and rotting for centuries would double the production of vegetables in the average Chicago garden.

As soon as the frost goes out of the ground go into the gardens and make an invoice of the "building materials" that are on hand in the soil that can be used in making plants. If the black top soil is deep enough that you can't touch clay or sand with a twelve inch spade shoved into the ground up to the feet there is plenty of humus. A dark, loamy soil means that the plants will have a roomy place for the roots to develop. Covering the garden with a layer of humus, which can be made from leaves, lawn clippings, decayed vegetables, and woods also serves to prevent the loss of crops when the weather is dry in

SUCCESSFUL NIGHT TRAP SHOOTING.

MORE than forty years ago the trap shooters started on this idea of smashing the clay pigeons by artificial light and since that time the nocturnal gunners have improved conditions considerably.

The Union Gun Club of Philadelphia is credited with being the pioneer in the manufacture of the trap in the first time the gunners tried their skill they shot at smoke balls thrown from a glass ball trap, the illumination being furnished by a calcium light.

From that event until about 1915 not much was done, but during the last nine years many clubs have gone in for the night shooting with constant improvements in lighting.

Among the clubs which have staged night events may be mentioned the Du Pont Trap Shooting club of Wilmington, Del.; the Riverside Gun Club of Rochester, N. Y.; the Evanston (Ill.) Gun club, which used acetylene lamps; as well as clubs in Oregon, and Calif.; the Lincoln Park Gun club also has arrangements for night shooting and occasionally stages such contests.

The Triangle Gun club of Dayton has started the most successful night trap shooting that can be found anywhere. They worked for weeks to get the proper lighting until finally an arrangement was secured whereby the white targets appear brilliantly illuminated against a black background.

That listens good, but for night shooting give us illuminated balloons.

Henry Express of Illinois.

Paddock felt, and I agree with him, that the expression of his illness were a proper charge against the Olympic committee, of 1924. Paddock has agreed to pay over to the Olympic committee of 1924 any sums which that committee may think to be still due.

With regard to the athlete's lecture tour, Mr. Prout pointed out that Paddock had taken special college courses to prepare himself for lecturing and had lectured frequently before becoming a noted footnoter.

Four Vote for Charlie.

Prout, Sam Goodman of San Francisco, Robert S. Weaver of Los Angeles, and Frederick W. Rubens of New York voted for Paddock's reinstatement. Verne R. C. Lacey of St. Louis voted against it.

PADDOCK OFFICIALLY O.K.'D BY A.A.U. CHIEF

Boston, Mass., March 17.—Charles Paddock, suspended California sprinter, has been reinstated by the Amateur Athletic Union. President William C. Prout made this announcement yesterday evening. Nine of the ten teams were so closely matched that no game in advance could be called a foregone conclusion. From the standpoint of thrills it was the greatest season of the indoor college sport.

In a statement issued several weeks ago, Paddock withdrew his criticism of the A. A. U., its officials and its athletes. Prout said: "With regard to the matter of his accepting excessive expense money, Paddock's explanation was that while in England returning from the last Olympic games he became ill with influenza and pneumonia and was obliged to spend substantial sums of money for hotel bills and the services of a physician and a trained nurse.

From that event until about 1915 not much was done, but during the last nine years many clubs have gone in for the night shooting with constant improvements in lighting.

Among the clubs which have staged night events may be mentioned the Du Pont Trap Shooting club of Wilmington, Del.; the Lincoln Park Gun club also has arrangements for night shooting and occasionally stages such contests.

WAVE OF SHORT COVERING RAISES GRAINS AT CLOSE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets were under pressure up to noon, but prices failed to decline far, and toward the close a wave of short covering swept over corn, which found offerings light and caused an advance of 1 1/4¢ to 1 1/2¢ from the low point, with the close about the top. Wheat and oats also advanced. Final trades were at gains of 1 1/4¢ on wheat, 1 1/4¢ on corn, 1 1/2¢ on oats, and 1 1/4¢ on rye.

Short Covering in Corn.

Local traders were persistent sellers of corn, but the market showed stubborn resistance to pressure. May sold down to 74¢, at which figure there was buying on routine orders by commission houses, and also covering by some of the local professionals who sold recently. This absorbed the surplus in the pit and when buying increased the pit element found little for sale and May jumped to 75¢ and closed at 75 1/2¢. July at 75 1/2¢ and September at 75 1/4¢.

Oats showed independent strength early and turned upward before corn did. May advanced to 74¢, and closed at 74 1/2¢. Seeding of the new crop in the west and southwest is being further delayed by a heavy snowstorm, and is causing some traders to take a bullish view of the situation.

Houses with export connections were fair buyers of rye, and the seaboard reported 80,000 bu. put aboard. Foreign countries are closely watched, as it is hoped that Germany may come into the market as a free buyer.

Previous Close Lower.

A decline in corn led to increased pressure on provisions, and a lower range. Cash demand was slow. Lard closed 4¢/4¢ lower, with ribs at 31¢/31 1/2¢, and clear bellies 21¢/22¢. Delivered on March contracts were 50,000 lbs. lard. Prices follow:

How Toilet Goods Manufacturers Can Expand a Great Market

MOST of these well known toilet articles are already recognized factors in The Chicago Territory. Yet, there is no doubt that the sales of each one of them should be—and could be—even greater in this rich, responsive market.

Here in Zone 7 is the most profitable outlet for toilet preparations in America. This is true not only because there are 18,000,000 people who possess one-fifth of the entire wealth of the country, but because these people can be reached and influenced to buy easily and economically.

REMEMBER THAT HERE you have 17% of the population of the country within a very restricted territory. You can dominate the district with strong selling advertising in one newspaper—The Chicago Tribune.

In The Chicago Territory you will find 8,700 drug stores, or practically one-fifth of all in the United States. You will find 842 department stores—and there are slightly more than 3,000 in all the rest of the country put together.

Can you think of any territory that lends itself so readily to intensive coverage for a toilet article either in selling or advertising, or both?

IF YOU COULD CONSULT every drug jobber in these five great states that constitute Zone 7, you would discover that practically three-fourths of them read The Chicago Tribune. Moreover, you would learn that a similar percentage find that advertising in The Tribune has a decidedly stimulating effect on sales. You would find that few of them read any Chicago paper who do not read The Tribune.

Of the retail druggists in The Chicago Territory two-thirds are Tribune readers. And many others who do not read The Tribune declare it to be a tremendous power for bigger, better sales.

PRACTICALLY ALL department store buyers in this rich district read The Tribune. In Chicago's loop 100% of the department stores that advertise, use the columns of The Tribune to carry their messages.

What an influence on the trade any toilet goods manufacturer can wield through a more intensive use of The Chicago Tribune!

Note, also, The Tribune's influence on retail sales—which after all is the most important point in the mind of any sales executive.

IN THE CITY OF CHICAGO and its suburbs The Tribune reaches an average of three out of five families. In the 154 cities of 5,000 inhabitants outside of Cook County, The Tribune reaches one-half to one-fifth of all the families. In 317 towns of 1,000 to 5,000 population and in 608 smaller villages of The Chicago Territory this proportion is the same.

With these figures in mind do you wonder that The Chicago Tribune has been called the greatest sales influence in this or any other territory?

MANY SHREWD, CAPABLE MERCHANTISERS—in all lines—concentrate their advertising in The Chicago Tribune. They act on their belief that this one great newspaper yields ample influence to win and to hold the business they want in Zone 7—all of it. Results—the best test of all—have confirmed their judgment.

Do you cultivate The Chicago Territory as thoroughly as you should? Does one-fifth of your sales effort go into Zone 7? Do you spend one-fifth of your advertising appropriation in The Chicago Territory where one-fifth of your market actually is located?

IT IS ONLY BY INTENSIVE SALES WORK, backed by concentrated advertising that you can win all that this rich district holds for you.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to the way in which you should operate in Zone 7, the Advertising Department of The Chicago Tribune is at your service. Tribune men are trained in merchandising as well as advertising. These men have conducted sales campaigns in The Chicago Territory. They are in continuous contact with the trade. They know what has been done and what can be done by a manufacturer in Zone 7.

A telephone call or a letter will bring one of these men to your office to consult with you—at your convenience.

THE CHICAGO TERRITORY

Throughout Zone 7, The Chicago Tribune has made an intensive survey of jobber and retailer conditions. The material obtained should be extremely valuable to those facing a sales or advertising problem in this extremely productive territory. Some of the most interesting features of this survey are printed in the Tribune's 1923 "BOOK of FACTS" which will be mailed to any selling organization requesting it on business stationery.

Another record March hog run at 77,000 forced yesterday's market $5@15 and lower, with best butchers at $7.35 and general average price $7.20, against $7.30 Saturday. $7.40 per pound Monday, $7.45 Tuesday. Shipping put chased more than a fourth of the day's receipts with outside call favoring lightweights. Packers were fair buyers and speculators took hold with considerable freedom, carrying over a good share of the 20,000 estimated left in the pens. Quality graded seasonably good, with underweights comparatively scarce. Choice 120@15 is fair, choice 100@15 high. Severe storms cut receipts to 25,940 corresponding Monday a year ago.

The 22,000 cattle received met with a good demand at steady strong prices, some of the better steers suitable for shipment selling 10@15 higher, with $13.00, top of the market. Steers averaging 1,858 lbs sold for shipment at $11.75, and 1,800 the average took the year. Steers at 11.25, one of the best, were $11.25, while others $11.50, with a good number averaging 1,233 to 1,450 lbs at $10.50. Butcher and canning stock ruled steady and carried strong. Stockers and feeding stock were only slightly changed.

Lamb Receipts.

With about 6 per cent of sheep receipts forwarded direct to packers from other markets, the 10,000 remaining on sale met outlet under brisk competition, a large number going east for slaughter. Last week's declines were regained, prices being 25@50 above the close of last week, with top at $16.00 standing. Bulk lambs brought 75@90 up, being mostly from Colorado and Idaho.

Sheep aged ewes established a new high price for the year at $3.25, choice 114 lb Wyoming stock bringing that figure. Wool ewes sold at $11.00. Feeding lambs advanced 15@25, but were too scarce to fairly test values.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 10,000 cattle, 26,000 hogs, and 14,000 sheep, against 12,000 cattle, 20,277 hogs, and 15,000 sheep the corresponding Tuesday a year ago.

BY PAUL WILLIAM
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service)
(Copyright 1924, By The Chicago Tribune)

LONDON. Feb. 16.—[Radio]—Labor as a government has not permitted disgruntled labor to make use of the walkout to further misery to this strike-bound land.

This was the answer to the challenge given in the house-moms this afternoon by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, head of the Socialist Labor government and leader of the Labor party. When asked steps had been taken or were planned to maintain the unloading distribution of the nation's food sixths of which comes from abroad during the continuation of the strike, Mr. MacDonald answered:

"The government will not take such steps as are required to secure the transport necessary, already set up the nucleus of organization. May I add an expression of hope that nothing be said or done to make difficult the only that really matters—a settlement of the dispute?"

The promise and plausibility were received with hearty cheers.

MacDonald Warns Prodigy.

Further evidence that the government has made "Duty to the public" its motto in handling the strike was forthcoming in a statement issued tonight to food producers. The warning, which takes the form of a communiqué from the cabinet,

"The cabinet has had information from various parts of the country and other prices are being from 33-3 to 60 per cent. There is no reason for this increase except power of profiteers to extract from public unjust prices. The cabinet this notice will have the effect of stopping these increases, but in the time it has asked that law officers consider the powers of the government in this matter and draft such emergency measures as may be necessary to prevent exploitation of the consumer to the present strike."

As the cabinet communiqué was issued the National Federation of Traders' Associations issued a statement that the "meat retailers are compelled to charge the public owing to the increase in wholesale prices." At Hull the master butchers announced an increase of one per cent in the prices of imports.

Opens Strike Inquiry Court.

Minister of Labor Shaw yesterday told the house that after seeing representations of the dockers and their employers today he had decided to point a court of inquiry, with Hon. Gregory as chairman, with the object to determine the cause and circumstances of the strike and make recommendations.

An investigation is not objected to by the officials of the dockers, but they assert they intended to intensify the strike, which would continue while the inquiry is proceeding.

Defy "Blacklegging" Charge.

The government's plan for obtaining food supplies and maintaining them, which have ceased altogether, was discussed today in conferences between Mr. MacDonald, Mr. Shaw, and Mr. Lloyd George, minister of transport. It is proposed that the cabinet, whose members include a number of men who are officials of the unions have participated in strikes, is carrying forward with measures to prevent the importation of John Bull's bread basket filled with the strike.

The shippers are preparing to employ nonunion men at the docks, and are heavily picketed. The press these workers will provoke violent reactions.

Every Port Tied Up.

This is the first time in its history that Great Britain has experienced a complete and simultaneous stoppage at all its ports. The situation is serious danger of spreading to other disaffected sections of the transport workers' union, which aggregates a membership of 1,000,000.

Only about half the members of the stevedores' union, which is not associated with the dockers, are reported for work today. The announcement was made that unless the union recognises the union they will remain on page 6, column 2.
